PAPER TO CLARIFY W. & A. DISCOUNT PLAN PRESENTED

Substitute Measures Appear To Be Moving Legislation Toward Adoption of Rental Proposal.

DUGGAN, BRITAIN PLEAD FOR FUNDS

Superintendent and Georgia Tech Head Appear at Public Hearing Held by Committees.

BY R. E. POWELL.

Introduction of substitute W. & A. railroad rental bills by the authors to clarify the present Battle-Allen plan in the house and to put up to the special session the question of whether the rentals shall be sold for 3 or 10 years appeared Wednesday to be moving the general assembly definitely toward this method of meeting the state's deficit.

Following closely the forecast made by assembly leaders last week, the ways and means and senate finance committees concluded public hearings late Wednesday afternoon after Dr. M. L. Duggan, state superintendent, had made an effort to clear the muddy situation in which public schools find themselves and Dr. M. L. Britain had pleaded with the assembly to meet its responsibility both to the public schools and institutions of higher learning.

Investigate Debate Speeded.

Developments in and out of the legislative halls Wednesday, including the introduction of the W. Cecil Neill bill to authorize a referendum on a constitutional amendment permitting the governor to borrow $5,000,000, along with announcement that a somewhat similar bill will be tossed into the lower branch by a group of house members this morning, indicated more determination on the part of leaders to speed the debate than is inevitable before any single plan for paying off the deficit is agreed upon.

Subcommittees working in the house and senate, including one to draw a compromise bill line regulation measure and one in the house to rewrite the general tax bill, brought the special session to the beginning of its third week down to the progress made in regular sessions only after four to six weeks of preliminary skirmishing.

Viewed as especially significant in a day of committee work by both branches was the suggestion of Dr. Britain, president of Georgia School of Technology, somewhat reluctantly ventured after direct inquiries from committee members, that "luxuries, power and wealth" ought to be taxed to pay off the state debt, estimated by the auditor at $6,200,000.

"There are many men of large incomes," Dr. Britain told the committee, "who pay nothing toward the state school expense."

Dr. Britain, speaking for all the higher institutions, declared that the trouble with the county schools today

Equipment Lack Forces Delay In Draft Call

U. S. Lacked Machine Guns and Failed To Anticipate Their Necessity—Pershing Visits French G. H. Q.—Petain Mistakes Him For a Sergeant—Pershing Bans a Portrait After Petain Relates a Superstition—Our Army Cooking Inferior to French.

CHAPTER XI.

In the organization of our armies for the World War it was evident that if any considerable numbers were to be sent abroad an additional force would be needed over and above the regular army and the national guard.

The war department therefore established what was called the national army, to be composed principally of men who were to come into service through the draft. Most of the divisions of the national army were organized in August and September, 1917.

As the time approached to begin the training of the smaller units it was found after equipping the special troops urgently needed in France there was little equipment left even for the additional men required to fill up the national guard.

Unfortunately, this made it necessary to delay calling out men for the units of the national army. However, considerable numbers were called into service and proceeded with preliminary instruction, but the lack of equipment seriously delayed their progress.

The development of the machine gun as an infantry weapon, following the experience of the Russo-Japanese war, had been carried to a high degree of perfection, especially in the German army, where its value was more fully appreciated than among the Allies.

In this, as in every other line of preparation, we were far behind all others. The question of adopting types of machine guns and automatic rifles for our army had been discussed at home for years and test after test had been made, but the nearest approach to a decision was an armaments discussion in the war department and certain inventors, with the result that when we entered the war no definite conclusion had been reached.

SENATE APPROVES R. N. FICKETT, JR., JOHN N. GEORGIA NEW SHRINE HEAD

George Sees $1,200,000 Available for Crop Financing.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The senate today passed the joint resolution sponsored by Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, and Senator Elihu H. Smith, of South Carolina, authorizing the department of agriculture to loan to farmers of four southern states all funds repaid the government out of the loans issued for last year for purchase of feed, seed and fertilizer.

The four states affected are Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina.

Sensor George estimated that Georgia farmers will have available to them approximately $1,200,000 for such loans in financing spring crop operations, instead of the $750,000 estimated previously. Between four and five million dollars of last year's fund has been repaid, he stated.

Action of the senate today on the joint measure is taken to mean that similar action will be forthcoming in the lower house shortly, the Georgia senator added. As soon as the measure is finally approved steps will be taken to have the appropriations act, while Secretary of War, among the crowd.

"She sat at a counsel table with her 'boy friend,' Alfred Mathes, reading newspapers and occasionally joking with friends."

Before going to dinner, the jurors apparently had cleared a path for an interrupted consideration of the case, which had been on trial since January 13. Twice they sought technical information and once they returned to the courtroom to inquire about procedure in balloting and a confusion in dates in the indictment which was corrected.

Courtroom attaches saw in their question about the ballots an indication of an early disagreement. Ralph Boynton, foreman, asked if it was 35 counts to be unanimous. The court instructed them that each must be unanimous.

David Clark, chief prosecutor, in the state's closing plea, flayed defense witnesses and Nathan O. Freeman, foreman, asked if it was 35 counts to be unanimous. The court instructed them that each must be unanimous.

Means of Ousting Squatters Without Jeopardizing Lease Puzzles Officials of Borough

Atlanta's legal claim to its $1,000,000 white elephant, the old city hall site, was definitely established Wednesday afternoon as Judge Edgar T. Pomeroy, of Fulton county superior court, denied a petition for an injunction to prevent the borough from ejecting a corps of squatters, who settled on the property early in the morning, and who announced they would open a parking lot and filling station.

The decision, however, left official Atlanta in a dilemma as to what course it should pursue in the new legal matter to oust the tract, one of the most valuable sites in Atlanta, has been thrown, as any overt act on the part of the borough might react to abrogate the lease.

Confederate veterans, white of head and tottering of step with the weight of passing years, Wednesday unveiled a bronze plaque to a Yankee foe of the sixties.

The tablet honored Alexander H. Wray, of Patchogue, Long Island, N. Y., who had given all of his federal pension to the Georgia Confederate home since 1907, amounting to more than $5,000.

Wray was not present for the simple ceremony. Like the veterans of Dixie the years had brought its infirmities and he could not make the trip to Georgia.

F. H. Colley, of Washington, Ga., erect despite his 83 years, unveiled the tablet with the assistance of Mrs. John A. Perdue, for 15 years state chairman of the home, and Mrs. Howard McCutcheon, a member of the state plaque committee, of which Judge Peter W. Meldrum, of Savannah, was chairman.

The plaque bore the words:

In 1907
Alexander H. Wray
Of Patchogue, Long Island, N. Y.
Donated to the Confederate Soldiers' Home
Of This State His Pension as a Veteran of the Federal Army in the War Between the States.
For 23 Years the Donation Has Been
Now Amounting to More Than Five Thousand Dollars.

In Appreciation of the Generosity of the Donor, and in Admiration of His Nobility of Soul, This Tablet Is Dedicated to a Brave Foeman Who Went to the Front With a Friend.

The unveiling took place in the library of the Confederate home. Slowly the 30 veterans of the home shuffled into the small room, all of whom were more than a hundred years of age, and who were greeted by a few years ago and sang of the days that were, except 15 who lie in the hospital.

Colonel R. deT. Lawrence, state pension commissioner and himself a veteran of 30 years, officiated at the ceremony.

Mr. Colley read the wording of the plaque, the women unveiled it, there was a stirring old hymn, "How Firm a Foundation," a benediction and the honors had been done.

It was all over in ten minutes but not a veteran would take a proffered seat and, almost fatigued by the ceremony, they slowly turned to their rooms to await the setting sun.

The donation, Colonel Lawrence said, was due to Wray's comfortable financial circumstances, his belief that the Georgia Confederate veterans were more in need of the money, and because he admired Georgia's soldiers.

Park Condemns Georgia Taxation For 'Waste and Extravagance'

MACON, Ga., Jan. 21.—(AP)—In a condemnation of Georgia taxation for its waste and extravagance, Orville A. Park today laid the blame for the state's stagnation and crippled finances to the 161 counties, each with a separate and expensive set of officers "who drain its wealth and sap its resources."

The tax expert, Macon attorney and legislator-elect, told members of the Macon Rotary Club that only by merging its counties and increasing the efficiency of a government which has grown more and more cumbersome with old age could the state hope to rise from its rank at the bottom of the nation.

Mr. Park combined with his appeal for the reduction of counties an urge that Macon and Bibb county combine its tax machinery, and then undertake a merger with surrounding counties. By taking in "territory that is dragging us all down," a substantial saving could be effected to all communities, he maintained.

The attorney, who is special counsel for the Georgia Tax Revision Association, showed charts illustrating

RUMORED CHANGES ON REPEAL DENIED

Capital Is Interested in Hoover's Assumption of Militant Dry Leadership Through Statement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(UP) Presidential influence on the Wickham commission was the subject of widespread attention here today.

A resolution was introduced by Senator Millard E. Tydings, democrat, Maryland, asking for a senate investigation of the processes by which the commission reached its conclusions. Tydings explained later his purpose was to ascertain whether any persons not members of the commission had influenced its decisions.

The United Press was informed by an administration source that as a result of conferences between the president and Chairman George W. Wickham, the commission's general report abandoned a tentative recommendation for immediate revision of the eighteenth amendment.

This disclosure came after it was discovered that two members of the commission, in their separate reports, referred to a recommendation by the commission for immediate revision of the amendment—a recommendation not appearing in the published version, which merely suggested a draft for adoption in event anything was done.

Republican senators were advised that the commission would report January 6. Actually the commission will not send the report to the president until January 19, although the main report and all separate statements were dated January 7. No formal action on the report has been made.

The White House declined either to deny or confirm information regarding the changing of the commission's final recommendations.

Chairman Wickham issued a 34-word statement saying the report that the president had persuaded the commission to abandon a tentative recommendation in favor of revising the eighteenth amendment, it stated.

"These statements are wholly without foundation. At no time has the president in any manner attempted to influence the recommendations of this commission."

Further suggestions embodied in telegrams received by members of this commission from various newspapers pel Palmer and Captain Boyd, and after dinner left with General Petain and two or three members of his staff on his train for an inspection of French and American troops the following day. We reached Gondrecourt the next morning and began the day with a review of the French 47th infantry division, which was paraded on a prominent plateau near Houdaincourt.

This division had been in every serious engagement of the war and its losses had been very heavy, as could be easily surmised from the youthful appearance of the officers, most of whom had been killed in the trenches to replace casualties among their seniors. General Petain told them that because of its fine record the division had been given the special honor of assisting in the instruction of the American First division.

Accompanied by Brigadier General Bundy, Colonel Cruikshank and others I took General Petain to see some of our troops being trained in throwing grenades and in the use of the French automatic rifle. One of the men insisted on throwing his grenade immediately after setting the fuse instead of waiting till he slowly counted seven, which was necessary so the explosion would occur as the grenade reached its destination.

After being cautioned several times by his officer the man said: "Captain, I just can't hold these grenades any longer because I can feel them swelling in my hand." We visited several villages occupied by French and American troops. As we passed through our billets and inspected the kitchens, Petain paraded the troops and the components of our ration and the manner of cooking and serving meals. The French soldiers were furnished with a place of coffee provided for our men, and the allowances differed in other respects, ours containing a larger meat component. But when it came to cooking the French were ahead of us, although our men preferred our own to either the French or British ration.

A joke on Petain. In many cases on our tours with General Petain we had to climb ladders to reach our billets in the hay mows. In one loft I happened to stand apart near a neatly made bunk and in the dim light General Petain mistook me for the sergeant in charge. He asked me how we liked our billets, and a number of other questions about our life in France, which I answered respectfully, playing the part the best I could. He did not know the difference until he was told by some of the amused members of his staff after we had descended.

Motoring to Souilly, the headquarters of the French second army, we met Major General Fayolle, commanding the group of armies of the center, and Major General Guillaumat, commander of the second army, whose chief of staff explained in detail the plan of the battle that was to take place next day. We had lunch with General Fayolle, whom later I came to regard as one of the ablest of the French generals. In appearance he was rather frail, no longer young, but active and alert.

On our visit to the military hospital at Souilly, General Petain decorated Mlle. de Baye, a nurse, with the Croix de Guerre, as she lay on a cot suffering from a severe wound inflicted by a piece of shell two days before. When he told her who I was, she said: "I am glad you are here, general, to see how a French woman can suffer for her country." She was so happy, however, that I am sure that for the moment she had entirely forgotten her pain. The following afternoon I had a most agreeable surprise. Motoring to the command post of the XVI corps, which conducted this offensive, we found an old friend of Russo-Japanese War days, Major General Corvisart, in command. As viewed from his post the battlefield lay before us like a panorama, and with the sun at our backs we could easily follow the advancing French lines, one particular unit under observation being the famous Foreign Legion in which I had become interested many years before from reading Gide's tale, "Under Two Flags."

Being entirely assured regarding the outcome of the battle, Corvisart and I dropped into reminiscence of our former service together in Manchuria. We had been military attachés in Japan at the same time, both of us being assigned to General Karaki's army as observers. I inquired about Major Cavaglia, the Italian attaché, and learned that he was then a lieutenant general commanding an army in northern Italy. We recalled that when we were with the Japanese army Cavaglia used to wake us every morning singing Italian opera. Major Bela de Dani, the Austrian, had been advanced to the same position as Cavaglia. Sir Ian Hamilton, of Gallipoli fame, already held the rank of major general when he was observer with the Japanese. Colonel Fowke had become lieutenant general and adjutant general of the British forces.

And so we ran through the list up to the German attaché, Captain Hoffman, but had recently succeeded Ludendorff as chief of staff on the Russian front, and later became a general. I then asked about Major Kizer, the senior German attaché, and it was easy to anticipate the reply as Corvisart, with a smile of satisfaction, pointed to the battlefield and said:

"I have just beaten him today. He is commanding a division opposite me."

A $75,000,000 Bombardment. This attack of the second French army, although made astride the Meuse river, was directed principally against Hill Mort Homme and Hill Hoffman, both famous in the struggle of 1916. To destroy the wire entanglement and demolish trenches, as a precaution against heavy losses, the infantry assaults were preceded by four days' continuous bombardment, and relatively the amount of artillery ammunition expended exceeded that of any previous engagement, its value being, as I remember it, some $75,000,000.

The proportion of the artillery force as compared to the infantry in this battle was as eleven to ten. The firing attained such precision and volume that the German troops in the forward positions were submerged and the attacking infantry reached most of its objectives by nightfall the first day, making an advance of five kilometers and capturing 6,000 prisoners.

The sector where the French attack took place was to have a peculiar interest for me before the end of the war. My headquarters as commander of the First Army one year later occupied the building in Souilly, then used by Major General Guillaumat, and the line reached by Corvisart's troops in this battle became our jump-off line in the Meuse-Argonne battle. In fact, every foot of the ground covered in this inspection with General Petain became associated later with America's greatest effort in the war.

After visiting the French installations and the manifold activities carried on behind this front, with the shifting masses of combat troops and the thousands engaged in the services of supply and transportation, it seemed quite improbable that we should be able to marshal a sufficient army in time to replace the French on this front before 1919. I found it most agreeable as well as instructive to be with Petain in this intimate way, and have an opportunity to hear something of his experience. His discussion of the defense of Verdun, in which he played an important part, being second in command, was especially entertaining. As we drove about he spoke of the courage of his troops and of the tremendous losses they had sustained. He pointed out the vast amount of road work, including the Voie Sacree from Barle-Duc to Verdun, rebuilt under his direction for the constant movements of large bodies of troops and supplies necessary to maintain the defense.

In lighter vein, his comments during his trip of French politicians were amusing, if not always complimentary, and he congratulated me many times on being so far removed from political interference. One afternoon the conversation drifted to painting and he asked me how many times I had sat for my portrait. "Several times already," I said. "The last one, which was very good, was done by a distinguished artist by the name of Jonas (English Jonah) for 'Illustration'."

Immediately he said: "Don't let them publish it! Don't do it! Every officer whose portrait has been believed from his command." Not that I am superstitious, quite the contrary, but I immediately forbade the publication of the portrait, and to this day it has never appeared. From the time of Nivelle's failure in April the depression in the French armies had been so great that Petain, who succeeded him, had been content simply to hold the trenches, and no French offensive operation of consequence had been attempted until this one. From the moment of his assignment Petain began to build up the shattered morale of his armies, and probably no officer in France could have performed the task so well.

Petain's immense success in the defense of Verdun had won for him the confidence of the army and the country, and yet he remained the same modest, unassuming character, consistent and conservative. He, perhaps better than any other, understood the temperament of the French soldier, whom he handled with infinite patience and tact.

Petain had visited some 90 divisions and impressed them with his personality and prestige. As his efforts began to bear fruit he concluded to try a limited operation, to be carried out by especially selected units. The preparations for the attack, which we had just witnessed, were worked out in minute detail and with the utmost secrecy in order to insure success, its avowed purpose being to stimulate the morale of both the army and the people. Petain himself and the ministry were much pleased with the result.

It is my opinion that, under the circumstances, the selection of Petain to be commander-in-chief of the French armies, which was made by

RED CROSS SEEKS QUOTA OF $50,000

Campaign for Drouth Relief Fund To Start Here Today.

The Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross will launch a campaign today to raise $50,000, the city's quota in the $1,000,000 special drouth relief fund. George K. Selden, chairman of the chapter, will direct the campaign, solicitation of donations will be made at present, Mr. Selden said, adding that the campaign for the time being will be carried on in the newspapers, over the radio and through the churches.

"In our last campaign, which was conducted to benefit those made victims of the Porto Rico hurricane, we had an unusually good response from Atlanta citizens and we know that once more the need is far greater. Atlanta will do its part," Mr. Selden said. "I think we can raise our quota here without any extreme difficulty." Mr. Selden said later he planned to ask volunteer workers to obtain subscriptions from the general public. "The details are appalling," Mr. Selden said of the drouth disaster. "Reports from Red Cross headquarters in Washington tell us that this relief task promises to exceed that of the great Mississippi flood of 1927. Where it involved seven states, the Red Cross is now giving drouth relief to 21 states. Pellagra and dietary diseases are spreading in the worst stricken areas, and famine is threatened at places. Over a half-million people are being fed, clothed and furnished medicine by the Red Cross, at this time."

Squatters Prepare To Occupy City Site Permanently

were convicted of receiving bribes to have the Carling lease accepted.

20 Years Required.
It was pointed out that it would take 20 years of continuous squatting on the part of Murrell and his colleagues before they could claim undisputed right to the tract, and that even if they had a clouded lease, it would take seven years of undisputed possession to give them a clear title.

Chief Beavers declared that he would arrest Murrell and his accomplices if they attempted to keep their vigil over the tract with their announced intention to possess the site. "They are trespassing on property without the consent of the owner, as far as we know, and under the law can be ejected," he held.

Carling L. Dinkler, former president of the Carling Hotel Company, Inc., Wednesday night reiterated a former statement that he is no longer connected with that company, and that he knows nothing about the squatters.

Murrell occupied the tract with Thomas B. West and was taken to the station. Cone conferred with city attorneys and advised that they should be freed.

"The property is mine now," Murrell said. "The city says it belongs to the Carling Hotel Company. That company has declined to do anything about it, and so we are claiming it. We intend to take every action necessary to protect our rights in the matter."

is due largely to the fact that every county is a law unto itself. He said that 95 per cent of them, however, are in financial straits.

"They depended on you," Dr. Brittain said in addressing the joint committee. "In 1928 and 1929 to pay these appropriations. You can't pay appropriation bills as the governor seems to think you can. The banks say to the schools that they must pay off past due balances before asking for additional credit."

"We are not too poor in Georgia to pay these debts. The teachers have been doing the best they could, using script here and there, but generally they are about nine months behind in getting their salaries."

"Reputation has an ugly sound and should have." The case for the schools and institutions, which Dr. M. J. Duggan claims the state owes approximately $3,700,000 now, was closed by Dr. Brittain after the state superintendent had explained his understanding of the situation in several counties and after, also, he had admitted that he restored the $50 per month payment to county superintendents in 1928 after obtaining the approval of the attorney-general.

Both house and senate leaders were inclined to predict that the house ways and means committee, after receiving the substitute for the Battle-Allen discount plan, will begin an examination of the details of this measure and let other tax bills wait until the sentiment of the legislature is crystallized.

One of the two substitutes which will be offered in the house this morning would provide for the discount of three years rentals, a plan that would bring about $1,500,000 into the general treasury and meet the exigencies at the state's charitable institutions. The 10-year plan, believed to be less favored than a short term discount, would bring more than $3,250,000 into the treasury, the exact condition of which, at the end of 1931, will be influenced largely by the size of income and ad valorem tax collections in comparison with the legislative estimates of what they would be.

commission authority to appoint wardens with approval by the prison commission. Senator A. L. Hughes, of the fifth, cast the only vote against the bill in committee.

Fisher proposed that the legislature buy good agricultural land for the state prison farm and leave the present farm in the hands of the prison commission to be used for industrial purposes, not in competition with free labor. Several hundred prisoners on a good farm could raise enough produce to feed all state institutions, and a similar number in a state industrial plant, with $150,000 in equipment, could give the state a net profit of $100,000 a year, Fisher said.

It was reported that a bill to industrialize convicts will be prepared and introduced in the house. Fisher expressed doubt that convicts could be used on the highways at a profit, when two men and a tractor can do more road building than 100 convicts. The machines he proposes to buy for industrialization of the prison farm would be good for 12 years' service, he said. Pennsylvania convicts are turning $1,000,000 a year into the state's treasury by their labor, he added.

Johnston Deason, of Stewart county, opposed the convict road labor bill, declaring it would turn the highway department into a prison board and that a camp in his county has lost money using convicts on the roads.

The cost is Small Wherever You call

Talking to out-of-town relatives or friends is the most pleasing and satisfactory means of communication. Telephoning is just like being there in person and the cost is surprisingly small. When using Day Station-to-Station service you can talk a distance of one hundred miles for approximately sixty cents, and by using the same service after 8:30 at night you can talk that far for as little as thirty-five cents. The cost of talking greater distances is correspondingly small.

People everywhere are daily experiencing enjoyable chats with relatives and friends in other cities. You, too, can afford such pleasures. Remember "the cost is small wherever you call."

Double-attack Best for Colds ... but

Most colds yield to the combined stimulation and inhalation effect of Vicks when it is rubbed on throat and chest. But in certain types of colds, or colds in various stages, stronger vapor inhalations are helpful; while in others stronger stimulative action through the skin is needed.

For Stronger Vapors

For instance, when the air-passages are badly clogged with mucus or phlegm, or if there is much coughing, melt a teaspoonful of Vicks in a bowl of boiling water and inhale its steaming medicated vapors. This 5 minute treatment brings immediate relief and comfort.

For More Stimulation

If a cold has been neglected and gone down into the chest it helps to reddens the skin over the chest with hot wet towels before applying Vicks. Cover with warm flannel cloth, of course, after spreading on thick layer of Vicks.

For best ways to treat every kind of cold trouble, see detailed Directions Folder in your package of Vicks. These directions are carefully revised by our physicians and you will find them always in accord with the best medical knowledge of the day.

Warning!

Accept no "just as good," or so-called "improvements" on Vicks. 187 such "imitations" have been tested by our chemists and found inferior in quality or strength. Unless checked, colds often develop serious complications. Take no chances. Insist on the original, full strength, dependable Vicks.

FULTON SCHOOL ISSUE DISCUSSED

Board Decides To Put Bond Question Up To County Commission.

The county board of education, at a special meeting Wednesday at the courthouse, decided to consult the county commission before determining whether to seek a bond issue for construction and repair of school buildings.

The entire proposal was discussed at length in the two-hour session. Though no definite amount of bonds has been decided upon, it was said at the meeting that about $500,000 would be required to carry out the board's building program which was halted January 1 when the county commission was unable to comply with the board's request for $240,000 as its 1931 appropriation and agreed to give the board only $180,000 this year.

Cam D. Dorsey, president of the school board, in outlining the program to other members of the board, said he believed the board had exhausted all its means of raising funds and saw no hope for completion or continuance of the building program unless the bonds were voted.

The school board president said the body would appear before the county commission at its next meeting and make an effort to learn just what the schools may hope to get from the county in the next few years.

"Of course the board wants to avoid the bond issue if possible," Mr. Dorsey said. "And we certainly do not want the bonds if the people do not. We have just been halted in our building efforts and want the people to decide for themselves about the future."

RADIO CRIME WAR TO BEGIN MARCH 1

Police Committee Asks Equipment Bids and Survey of Needs.

Atlanta's scientific warfare against crime will begin as soon after February 11 as is practicable, it was decided Wednesday night at a special called session of the police committee.

Bids for radio equipment needed by the department, accompanied by surveys by radio engineers of leading equipment distributors, were formally asked by the committee at the session, which Alderman Alvin C. Richards, chairman, called Tuesday just after Acting Mayor J. Charlie Murphy, another member of the committee, had approved a council ordinance setting up $8,500 for institution of the system.

The fight for radio equipment was in progress for nearly three years, council voting the necessary funds Monday.

One Atlanta Bank Among 100 Largest

One Atlanta bank qualified this year among the 100 largest banks in the United States, according to the annual ranking of institutions with regard to size and deposits, which was announced Wednesday in The American Banker, official organ of national banks in the United States.

The First National Bank of Atlanta gained that distinction, it was said, by virtue of its deposits of $84,605,319.38, which gave it sixty-fourth place among the nation's largest banks. Total deposits of the 100 banks listed in the magazine amount to $22,158,278,000, while the capital aggregate amounts to $1,366,444,500.

Representatives of distributors and manufacturing plants were present at the session Wednesday night, and were asked by the committee to make surveys and file bids for needed equipment.

It is estimated that the plant can be installed and in operation by March 1.

MARYLAND GOVERNOR HITS DRY LAW REPORT

Says Prohibition Problem Belongs to People of States and Country.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 21.—(AP)—Governor Albert C. Ritchie said today that "the chaos of opinion" in the report of the Wickersham law enforcement commission "shows clearly that the prohibition problem belongs to the people of the states and communities of the country."

"When you try to comment on this report as a whole," said Governor Ritchie, "you get in a maze and a whirl. The trouble is not that most of the commission have no opinions of their own. They have. The trouble is that they felt the necessity of signing something to which hardly any of them could agree."

"But while the commission subscribed to what may be called a dry report, when you turn to the opinions of the individual members you find that most of them are not dry at all. In the opinions of nearly all you read either directly or indirectly the lines of temperance and moral conduct and law observance, the eighteenth amendment cannot be allowed to continue much longer.

"And after all, doesn't this chaos of opinion, in a commission drawn from all parts of the country, as to what the right remedy is, doesn't this show clearly that there is only one remedy?"

"The problem belongs to the people of the states and the communities of the country. The federal government took it away from them and tried to settle it for everybody. That has failed.

"You can't settle it by one rule for the whole country. So let the federal government turn the problem back again to the states and communities from which it never should have been taken, and let their people settle it for themselves. They can be trusted to do it."

SALOON GONE FOREVER.

In the welter of opinions evoked by the Wickersham commission's report Josephus Daniels, the secretary of the navy in the Wilson cabinets, throws in the stereotyped anti-saloon raw-head, saying:

If failure of the 15th amendment should come, it is clear that the alternative of prohibition would be going back to the old saloon era.

Instead of a return to the saloon era, in any event, being "clear," the strongest and most universally accepted fact attending prohibition is that the saloon will never come back as a legalized drunkard-factory anywhere in the United States, even in the most populous cities. No national referendum is required to fix that fact. Public sentiment in every field of American life is united upon that issue and that is why the Wickersham commissioners are unanimously with that sentiment.

The majority of the commission takes a better advised view than that of Mr. Daniels. It recommends that if and when prohibition has convincingly shown its failure as an anti-liquor policy, the amendment setting up the policy can and should be revised so as to secure temperance and law observance without any restoration of the saloon era anywhere.

As one of the commissioners justly remarked in his separate note, it is greatly discounting the intelligence and self-governing skill of the American people to suggest that they cannot regulate and control the liquor traffic without inviting a return of all the evils of the saloon system. Mr. Daniels is in a hopeless minority with his opinion that the only alternative to futile prohibition is the corner doggerly.

THE RADIO-ARMED POLICE.

The equipment of the city police force with a radio broadcaster and contact cruiser cars is to be commended.

In those cities where the device has been installed there have been valuable results obtained in the quick apprehension of criminals, catching them often red-handed, or in circumstances leading to their conviction. The volume of crimes has been appreciably reduced, life and property given better protection, and police costs themselves reduced by making large additions to the force unnecessary.

The courage of the criminal of today is fortified to audacity by the ease with which he can use the automobile for a quick and safe getaway from the scene of his crime. The police radio system largely nullifies that expedient. It enables a police cruiser car to quickly take up the chase and run the fleeing hold-up band down. When the system is operating efficiently hold-ups of stores, banks, filling stations and pedestrians will probably decline.

THOSE DANGEROUS DOLES.

The federal senate having passed the Robinson amendment to hand over $25,000,000 to the Red Cross with which to supply food and other relief to drought sufferers in Arkansas and elsewhere, it is probable the house of representatives will resolutely reject the measure.

It is astonishing that Senator Robinson and other democrats in the congress should stand for such a malapropriation of public funds. They certainly cannot have read the veto message of President Grover Cleveland when, in 1887, he refused to sign a bill to appropriate federal money for relief of drought-stricken counties in Texas. In that message he said:

I can find no warrant for such an appropriation in the constitution, and I do not believe that the power and duty of the general government ought to be extended to the relief of individual suffering which is in no manner properly related to public service or benefit. A relief fund should be organized by the state or local government, and the limited money of the power should, I think, be steadfastly refused, to the end that the lesson should be constantly enforced, that though the people support the government, the government should not support the people. Federal aid in such cases encourages the expectation of paternal care on the part of the government and weakens the sturdiness of our national character.

There spoke a great democrat and constitutional statesman, and neither Senator Robinson nor President Hoover can find any warrant in the national constitution for using federal funds for individual doles however disguised as "loans" never to be repaid.

It was set forth by Justice Story for the supreme court, early in its history, that "the government of the United States can claim no powers which are not granted to it by the constitution," and "expressly granted, or given by necessary implication." As Cleveland said, no power is expressly given in the constitution, or can be necessarily implied, to take the money of all the people to relieve the temporary needs of a very few persons suffering from a natural casualty.

To break down the hedge of the constitution in this emergency will be a precedent that will be appealed to hereafter whenever the constituents of any senator or congressman are affected by drought, tornado, flood, crop failure through boll weevil or wheat rust, or other form of local distress.

Appropriations such as proposed by Senators Caraway and Robinson, and voted by the senate, are clearly unconstitutional and tend to transfer the government into the paths of paternalism and subservency to the wants and demands of politicians playing for popularity. They should be resisted to the last ditch and no president should be found willing to approve them in view of his oath to defend the constitution.

GET ALL THE VIOLATORS.

Chief Beavers in instructing his patrolmen Wednesday to use more diligence in making cases against automobilists who violate the parking ordinances took a step in the right direction.

But he did not go far enough. The speeders and the drivers of improperly lighted cars should have been included among those to be "put on the spot," and the chief should have given the same instructions to the traffic squad that he gave to his roundsmen.

The drivers who handle their cars in a reckless manner and those who defiantly flaunt the ordinances devised for the safeguarding of the public are those who offer the greatest menace to the life, limb and property of our citizens.

It is against this class of traffic law violators that the police should direct their chief attention, and Chief Beavers should tell the members of the traffic squad, as he did the men on the various beats, that if they want to keep their assignments they must be more diligent. The attitude of the public toward the apparent apathy of the police in failing to clear the streets of willful violators of the various traffic laws is reflected in a communication, published in another column of this page, from John O. Wood, an Atlanta citizen.

Mr. Wood well says "the people are not going to stand much longer for the awful and unnecessary loss of life on our streets and highways," and it is high time for the police to realize it. A determined and sustained drive should be launched to secure the strict observance of ALL the traffic ordinances.

All that is needed to secure such observance is more arrests and firmer handling of cases by the courts.

Chief Beavers, upon whom rests the final responsibility for the enforcement of the laws of the city, has taken the proper attitude towards eliminating traffic congestion by reducing illegal parking in the downtown area. It is much more important that the lives and property of our citizens should receive the same consideration, and the chief should so instruct.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Prepare Your Ballots To Vote Dry or Wet in the 1932 Election.

What the Wickersham report means to the people at large is that they will have to make the issue of prohibition a standing part for the election of next year.

Woodrow Wilson said that when the issue of prohibition came into a political campaign it obscured, if it did not wholly submerge, other and more important interests.

For that reason he, as governor of New Jersey, stood for local option in that state and all states, and for that reason he vetoed the Volstead bill. He told this writer that he feared the provisions of that act would poison the whole stream of national politics and eventually involve the eighteenth amendment in a fight for its life.

What President Wilson said was a prophetic utterance. The provisions of that act would poison the whole stream of national politics and eventually involve the eighteenth amendment in a fight for its life.

Which Way the Leaders Face. The men who are prominently considered for the democratic candidacy are Frank D. Roosevelt, Albert C. Ritchie, Jim Reed and Jim Han Lewis, so far.

On the other side Hoover and Borah, both of whom are for the republican flapper, are drags. Senator Dwight Morrow is a wet "revisionist," but this Hoover whoopee is likely to put his torch on the blink.

A wet democratic party would stand to make large state gains in the east and middle west and suffer serious losses in the south.

A bone-dry 15th amendment republican party would gain in the west and northwest and make some state captures in the south, where prohibition stands as a strong as anywhere in the Union.

No Referendum Is Likely. The suggestion of that the commissioners, and that is often heard in and out of congress, for a national referendum to learn on which side of prohibition the majority lies, is a pipe dream.

Similar proposals were made in the congress when slavery issues were acute, but always rejected on the ground that the constitution does not give congress any authority to order such a referendum.

It would be absolutely outside its granted or implied powers and to make it wholly absurd and valueless would require that only one or more states should repudiate it and refuse to allow it to be voted upon in their confines.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 21.—(NANA)—With much of the glamour stripped from its annals and only the question and answer—objection—objection being sustained or denied—the case of Clara Bow versus Daisy De Boe is now on.

Only the defendant, still so calm and meticulously groomed, is seen in the courtroom today. Clara Bow, the feminine simon of the film industry, is not seen.

Both right and left frontal lobes of the brain may be removed without disturbing the patient's mentality. The patient remains perfectly oriented as to time, place and person; the memory is unimpaired; reading, writing and mathematical calculation are still done accurately; conversation is normal.

In other cases the left occipital lobe and the lower third of the left temporal lobe have been removed without apparent effect on mentality.

The intellect, which is seated somewhere in the remaining portion of the left cerebral hemisphere and is probably closely associated with the speech mechanism, remains intact.

Ligation (tying off) the anterior cerebral artery on the left side destroys consciousness; ligation of the right artery on the right side has no such effect.

The impurity with which large portions of the cerebrum may be destroyed or removed will suggest different ideas to different persons. ALABAMA DROPS 78 FROM STATE PAY ROLL

State Will Save $145,140 Annually in Salaries of Discharged Workers.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 21.—(AP)—Seventy-eight state employees drawing an aggregate annual salary of $145,140 were ordered discharged today by Governor B. M. Miller in the second day of his administration.

The employees' services were ordered discontinued effective today and affected 11 departments. The aggregate annual salary did not include traveling expenses of $4 a day allowed by the state to those with duties requiring travel.

The state law enforcement department consisting of 27 deputies and five highway traffic police was abolished under Governor Miller's order with Walter K. McAdams, chief of the department, discharged effective February 1.

COLD WEATHER TO STAY TODAY

Fair and continued cold weather with a minimum of snow or sleet is forecast by C. F. von Herrmann, government meteorologist.

Just how long the present cold snap will remain, Mr. von Herrmann Wednesday said he was not prepared to predict.

"Wednesday's low of 28 degrees will be duplicated this morning and the thermometer may even go lower," the forecaster said. "It will warm up a bit after midday but not likely go higher than 40 degrees."

CHILD RUNS WAGON INTO CAR; BADLY HURT

Seven-year-old C. B. Marston, Jr., of 347 Richardson street, was admitted to Grady hospital Tuesday afternoon with severe internal injuries suffered when, according to police reports, he ran his toy wagon into the side of a car operated by Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart, of 204 1/2 Moreland avenue. The accident occurred at Cooper and Ramona streets. No charges were made against Mrs. Stewart.

The report of the Wickersham commission, transmitted to congress by the president, with the various individual members, is like the Bible in one respect: Every party to controversy may quote something from it to suit his own purpose. The fundamentalist prohibitionists, however, will not be satisfied with it.

The Louisville (Ky.) Times—Herbert Hoover's report is a clear one 100-word statement to advance the cause of prohibition and prohibition enforcement than his Wickersham commission report, could do by duplicating the productivity of the producers of the Encyclopedia Britannica. Will he do it? Is he dry?

Chicago Daily News—There is clear indication that a majority of the commission actually expects to promote better enforcement of prohibition only for the period necessary for formal adoption and application of a different system of combating the liquor evil under a revised amendment of the constitution. On the whole, it is a report that is a step in the right direction, though it is, will tend to clarify the prohibition problem and to advance its ultimate solution in a more realistic way than the first principles of constitutional and free government.

Chicago Evening Post—The report of the Wickersham commission, whatever its merits, is a step in the right direction for further argument. It is, in fact, broken up by argument on the part of its makers. The commission reminds one of a choir composed of soloists who, after vainly endeavoring to sing the same song in the same key, break into separate vocal efforts, each with his own words and music.

Baltimore Sun—Taking the report as a whole, the public is not very far from the starting place. The commission has majority report that we already know. Perhaps it has improved the setting of these facts by bringing them together and giving them a concrete, official basis. But the service rendered by the report is not in the setting of the facts, but in the presentation of the fact the report signed by 10 members of the commission has a majority report that would be attacked by the opponents in this matter of any other 10 respectable and intelligent men and women. As to opinions, the millions of Americans can have their own.

Pittsburgh Post-Gazette—The exhaustive survey of conditions throughout the country by the Wickersham commission, the committee that national prohibition, as now in effect, should be changed. . . . There can be no question of the tremendous growth of the liquor traffic, but its full force has never been felt because of the lack of a generally acceptable constructive program.

Minneapolis (Minn.) Tribune—The Wickersham report turned out to be a series of individual reports, the sum total of which probably reflects the attitude of the American republic towards the question of prohibition. It is a remarkable report in that from a study of it one may draw any conclusion to which he is naturally disposed.

The report leaves the prohibition question about where it was when the commission was created. It neither pleases the out-and-out drags, nor the out-and-out wets. But it will give food for thought to those citizens who wish to see the liquor evil abolished to the greatest degree, but who are open to conviction that a general grant of power to deal with liquor may be the most hopeful path of the political tangle of prohibition.

St. Paul Pioneer Press—It was expected that this commission could find the magical formula—the few sharp points which would be on for once and all—then the report is a failure. The report drives home the fact once more that prohibition is the tremendous political issue. The people will have to decide the issue.

This is a work for voters, not experts. The conditional suggestion of the commission that congress be given a general grant of power to deal with liquor may be the most hopeful path of the political tangle of prohibition.

BUILDING AND LOAN LEAGUE OBSERVES DAY

Association Representatives Address Civic Bodies on Thrift.

As Building and Loan Day in National Thrift Week, today is being observed by members of the Atlanta Building and Loan League, believing that thrift will greatly encourage the promotion of home ownership.

Representatives of the building and loan league and the individual building and loan associations in Atlanta are appearing on the programs of the various luncheon clubs this week to urge a systematic plan of saving.

The building and loan associations take the position that if savings are increased, their funds will be increased and thereby make more money available for building homes in Atlanta, and this, they point out, will furnish employment for more men and act as a stimulant to business in general.

The total investment in building and loan associations throughout the United States is more than nine billion dollars, and the losses sustained in them are less than 1-100 of 1 per cent. The associations are fostered by the state and national government by tax exemption.

Participating in the observance of the day in Atlanta are the following associations: First Mutual Building and Loan Association, Decatur Building and Loan Association, Standard Building and Loan Association, Home Building and Loan Association, First National Building and Loan Association, Atlanta Building and Loan Association, and the Columbia Building & Loan Association.

Cost of Living Here Is Lowest In Southern Area

It cost less to live in Atlanta during the month of December than in any other city in the south, the United States department of labor revealed in official estimates made public Wednesday.

A drop of 7.9 per cent in the price of living necessities was recorded in this city during the period, which made Atlanta one of the most economical communities in the United States.

In representative cities throughout the United States the cost of living registered an average decrease of 6.2 per cent in December, 1930, as compared with same month a year previous. The composite calculation of the department, including all items consumed by an average family, showed a decrease in food prices of more than 7 per cent since last June. House furnishings and clothing came down by approximately 3.5 per cent, the report said.

Although the average cost of living last month was estimated at 60.7 per cent higher than during 1913, many cities recorded sharp decreases. The greatest drop, it was said, was Detroit, with 9.1 per cent. Prices were highest in Cleveland and Washington, D. C., where the drop was only 4.6 per cent.

In the south, the ratio of decrease was as follows: Atlanta, 7.9 per cent; Birmingham and New Orleans, 7.2 per cent; Mobile, 6.3; Savannah, 5.7; Memphis, 5.2; Norfolk, 5.0; and Richmond, 4.9.

CAPT. S. G. JORDAN TO BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for Captain Sterling G. Jordan, 60, of 1334 Wayne avenue, N. E., a member of the Atlanta fire department for the past 32 years, who died early Wednesday morning at a private hospital, will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Morrisville Presbyterian church by the Rev. Carl McMurray. Interment will take place in Crest Lawn cemetery.

Captain Jordan was born in 1871, and entered service with the fire department March 15, 1907. He was elected lieutenant on May 1, 1908, and captain December 17, 1914. At the time of his death he was stationed at company No. 19.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mildred Joiner Jordan, a niece of the late former Fire Chief W. R. (Cap) Joiner; two daughters, Miss Catherine Jordan, and Mrs. Ralph McNair; a sister, Mrs. C. L. Doyle of Macon, and two brothers, J. B. of Nashville, and J. P. Jordan, of Columbia, Miss.

The call for the conference, issued by Willis A. Sutton, head of the Atlanta public schools and president of the National Education Association, said the "public school systems of the south face a major crisis."

President H. O. Strohecker, of the South Carolina Education Association, said the conference planned to collect and make available information about educational opportunities in the south so that the public might be more fully advised.

The states represented here were Georgia, South Carolina, Mississippi, Florida, North Carolina and Virginia.

MISSING STUDENT SOUGHT BY POLICE

Police Wednesday were requested to conduct a search for John Medlock, 17-year-old freshman of the Georgia School of Technology, who has been missing since he left his parents' home in Norcross Monday morning. The student, his family said, departed as usual for his classes at about 8 o'clock that morning, and ordinarily would have returned that afternoon. He traveled between Atlanta and Norcross by train they said.

He is described as being about five feet, eight inches in height; slim, slightly freckled of face, light hair and eyes. At the time he left home he wore a black slip-over sweater, blue serge trousers and was barefoot.

DR. SAGE HEADS BAPTIST HOSPITAL

Dr. Dan Y. Sage, prominent physician, Wednesday assumed the duties of president of the staff of Georgia Baptist hospital, following his election Tuesday night at the annual meeting of the commission and general staff of that institution. Dr. Sage succeeded Dr. E. C. Thrash as president.

Other officers elected at the meeting were: Dr. L. G. Baggett, first vice president; Dr. Ben H. Clifton, second vice president, and Dr. J. T. Floyd, secretary. Dr. Sage and other officers were automatically elevated, as is the custom of selecting officers each year.

Annual staff reports showed that 4,657 new patients were treated during 1930, a slight decline compared with those treated during 1929.

TWO NEGRO BURGLARS GIVEN LONG SENTENCES

Long chain-gang terms were given two negroes Wednesday when they entered pleas of guilty to robbery and burglary charges. George Nunnally, known as the "West End burglar," was sentenced by Judge E. D. Thomas to serve from 15 to 35 years when he admitted entering a number of homes in the West End section of the city. Will Wilson was given 20 years by Judge Thomas when he admitted holding up stores on Auburn avenue and West Hunter street.

length of years. Read the experience of Mrs. T. H. Little, of Lawrenceville, who said: "My weight was down to 90 pounds before I took Sargon, but now I weigh 130—an actual gain of 40 pounds—and I feel like a different woman. I can't remember eating a meal in two years that didn't cause indigestion. My whole system seemed poisoned and I developed a bad case of rheumatism in my back, hips and shoulders. The pain was so intense and I was so weak, I could hardly get about."

"The very first bottle of Sargon made a wonderful change in my condition and now, after taking three bottles, I never have a sign of rheumatism or stomach trouble. I eat and sleep fine and feel well and strong in every way. Sargon is a marvelous medicine and I'll be glad to talk to anyone in person about it." SHE LOVED TO EAT BUT WAS ALWAYS PUNISHED FOR IT

Much of the suffering from so-called "indigestion" or acid-dyspepsia could be avoided if everyone could know what thousands like Mrs. H. L. Slagle learned. This popular Asheville, No. Carolina woman, who lives at 65 Woodfin Street, says:

"I suffered from gas and heartburn every time I ate pastries or sausage. I became bilious, dizzy, constipated; had no appetite. For about a year I tried different things until I saw Pape's Diapepsin advertised and got a package. I have used a number of packages now; have gained several pounds and feel fine. I eat pastry, sausage; about anything I please. At the first sign of discomfort I chew a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the trouble is gone in a moment. I recommend it to anyone with stomach trouble."

If you, too, suffer from sourness, gas, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, or pain after eating—either regularly or just at times—get a box of Pape's Diapepsin from your drug store. Then you never need worry again about what you eat. These tablets are like candy and just as harmless. If you would like to try them before buying, write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va., and you will receive a sample box, FREE.

Elihu Root Pleads U. S. Adherence to World Court

Veteran Jurist, Statesman Explains and Defends Revised Protocol in Long Discourse.

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Elihu Root told the senate foreign relations committee today that the revised protocol for American adherence to the World Court preserved unimpaired the reservation stipulated by the senate five years ago.

For almost three hours America's 86-year-old jurist and statesman explained and defended the revised protocol which he helped to draft at the suggestion of Calvin Coolidge to break the deadlock existing between this nation and other powers over the senate's reservations. Before a crowd that overflowed from the spacious committee room, Mr. Root concluded his analysis with a vigorous plea that America participate in the court as a contribution to the future peace of the world. He pounded the table and raised his voice to emphasize his plea.

Two-Hour Statement. After making an uninterrupted statement of more than two hours, Mr. Root submitted to questions by doubtful committee members. He parried with his interrogators willingly and only once did the throng of women break the injunction of silence which Chairman Borah had imposed.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, who said he has not determined his attitude on the modified World Court protocol, led in the examination given Mr. Root, a former secretary of state and former member of the senate.

Mr. Root explained that two obstacles stood in the way of acceptance by other powers of the senate's reservations regarding advisory opinion.

Points Out Obstacles. "First," he said, "in the asking of advisory opinion of the court, the assembly and the counsel of the League of Nations would be obliged to proceed in ignorance of the attitude of the United States. It would throw doubt and delay around all proceedings."

Second, there was ignorance on the part of the counsel of the other powers as to the meaning of the term impeded in the reservation. There was ignorance as to the scope the United States would give to the term "interests."

"The problem presented to the negotiators of the protocol now before you was how to secure acceptance of that reservation without permitting interference with the regular orderly business of the League of Nations. That is the purpose of this protocol."

Mr. Root explained that if at any time during proceedings before the court this government felt it had an interest proceedings could be stayed.

"That is all we have done," he as-

Quaint Lamb Rites Observed in Vatican

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Two little white lambs, adorned with pink ribbons and laid in flower-filled baskets, were presented to Pope Pius today.

This quaint custom is observed every year on the Feast Day of St. Agnes, Roman virgin and martyr. The pope pronounced the ritual benediction over the gift offering and then turned the two animals over to the Benedictine nuns. The sisters care for the lambs until Easter, when the animals are shorn.

realities about all the evidence of guilt and turn the spotlight to some one other than Miss DeBoe." The prosecutor, turning to face the blonde young defendant, declared she plotted deliberately to get everything she "could lay her hands on" when she learned last November that she was to be discharged.

"She went out and bought a lot of things," Clark said. "She paid all of her outstanding bills with Miss Bow's money."

"Then she got hold of the cancelled checks and the actress' love letters, the one to hide because she knew that if it was found it would reveal her guilt, and the other to use as blackmail on the actress if her act should be discovered."

When the sensational news of the alleged theft marked the newspaper, Clark continued, Miss DeBoe made a final effort to hush it up. "She went to W. I. Gilbert, Miss Bow's attorney, and demanded $125,000 or she would give the love letters to the papers and tell about her life with Clara. It was blackmail, and what a picture Miss DeBoe saw in her mind—the love letters of a famous actress on the front pages."

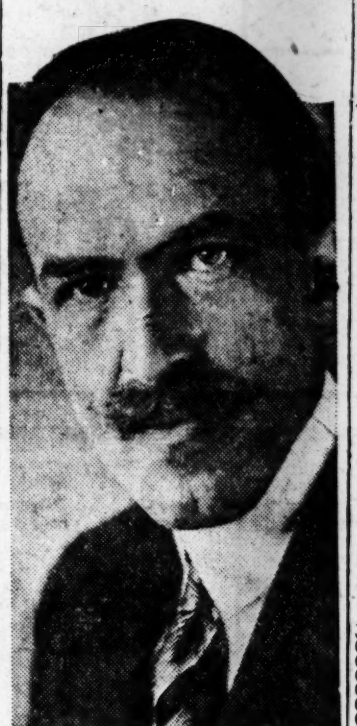

As a parting shot at Freedman, Clark said he "tried to sway your thoughts by pleading 'don't send this little girl to prison.'"

The court then outlined the law in the case to the jurors.

sorted, pounding the table. "It seems ludicrously small for so much fuss to be made about it."

Paul Rockwell, Famed Airman, Honored by Spain

the war against the Rifis. Captain Rockwell was one of two Americans to receive the award and was among the first group of soldiers to win the medal, recently created by King Alfonso.

Captain Rockwell was born in South Carolina and came to Atlanta after finishing his education at Washington and Lee University in 1911. He worked on Atlanta newspapers until the outbreak of the World War and sailed for France in August, 1914, to enlist with the French troops. A brother, Kiffin Rockwell, went with him. Kiffin was killed in action while a member of the Lafayette escadrille.

The former Atlantan has received numerous medals and citations for gallantry in action, outstanding among them being the Croix de Guerre of France.

In September, 1916, in Paris he married Mme. Marie Legues, the daughter of former Premier Georges Legues. They have one daughter, now 13 years old. Captain Rockwell now makes his home in Paris.

DEMOCRATS BLOCK PROBE IN ALABAMA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Charges that the Nye campaign funds committee had supervised and influenced senatorial elections last fall were made and denied in the senate today during debate on the Norris resolution to extend the committee's power to seize ballot boxes of those elections.

The assertions were made by democrats who blocked action on the proposal of Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, with arguments that no such authority should be granted unless contests were filed.

The resolution is designed to pave the way for seizing the ballot boxes in Alabama, where Senator Heflin charges the election was "stolen" from him. Both Heflin and John H. Bankhead, who defeated him, have urged an investigation and the Nye committee has investigators there now.

Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, in opposing the resolution, said the Nye committee and its investigators had gone into certain states last fall and "supervised and influenced" the election.

Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, chairman of the committee, said the charge was "unfair" and that all his committee was endeavoring to do was to ascertain if those in charge of the campaigns were "doing their duty."

Senator Stephens, democrat, Mississippi, joined Caraway in his contention, but blamed the senate rather than the Nye committee.

"I grant that the committee was following what appeared to be the mandate of the senate," he said, "but I do not approve of the course taken. Investigations should be conducted in the regular way, after the filing of contests," he added. "In effect, there has been a supervision of elections that is wholly unwarranted by law."

Stephens said Heflin could have filed a contest the day after election. Heflin previously had said he had until March 4 to file one, but had not done so thus far for fear "the ballots would be burned."

Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, also took the position that ballots should not be seized except where contests are filed. He offered an amendment to that effect, but Norris declined to accept it.

Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, said there was ample precedent for the Norris proposal in the fact that ballot boxes were impounded in the Pennsylvania election in 1926.

"Regardless of whether a contest has been filed," he said, "if there is evidence of manipulation it might be very important for the committee to investigate."

Heflin expressed "regret" that democrats opposed the Norris proposition. He said he had no apology to make for opposing Alfred E. Smith in 1928, for which he was forced off the democratic ticket last fall, and if the former democratic governor of New York ran again in 1932 he would oppose him in the same way.

SENATE PASSES EMPLOYMENT BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The compromise Wagner employment planning bill was passed today by the senate.

The measure was introduced by Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, as the compromise agreed upon by conferees of the senate and house on the employment planning bill proposed by him last session.

Under the measure, Wagner said, use would be made of the government's building program as a "balance wheel" to help stabilize private employment by providing opportunities for employment on public construction when private demands for labor are slack.

HEBREWS' 1933 MEET SET FOR SAVANNAH

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The real problem of the Jewish race, Ludwig Vogelstein, New York, said tonight in addressing the biennial council of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, is "How to Remain Jews." Other issues of the race, he said, depend upon that one matter. His subject was "Judaism as Expressed in Life."

Savannah, Ga., was selected as the place for the next biennial convention in 1933.

FORECLOSURE "TRUCE" ASKED FOR LAND BANKS

MCDONALD WINS AFTER EARLY LOSS

Labor Government Passes Education Bill After Defeat on Division.

BY PHILIP HEWITT-MYRING.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's labor government was defeated by 33 votes in a division on the controversial education bill in the house of commons tonight, but some hours later carried the bill victoriously through third reading by 256 votes against 238—a government majority of 18.

Now the measure goes to the house of lords. The defeat had no immediate consequence, for immediately after the division Mr. MacDonald announced to a wildly excited house that no big question of general principle was involved, and that the government would carry on.

The defeat came mainly as the result of the intrusion of a religious controversy into politics, for the division in which the government found itself outvoted, 282 to 249, was taken on an amendment to the education bill, moved by John Scurr, a Roman Catholic laborite.

This amendment called for the passage of an act giving financial assistance to religious schools before the main education bill is put into operation.

The amendment was carried against

AUTO LICENSES BRING $3,198,000 TO FLORIDA

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 21.—(AP)—The state treasury was $3,198,000 richer today as the result of funds turned over by Acting Motor Vehicle Commissioner W. S. McLin from proceeds of automobile license tags.

McLin said approximately 90 per cent of the state's motorists already have procured tags and as a result "this is more than $2,000,000 more than ever given to the treasury by January 15 in previous years."

ARAUJO SEEMS WINNER IN SALVADOR VOTING

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Incomplete returns in Salvador's presidential elections today gave Arturo Araujo 104,093 votes, a substantial lead over his closest com-

free wheeling —not the feature of a season but the future of an industry

INFORMED automotive engineers knew the whole future of the motor car was affected when Studebaker successfully introduced Free Wheeling with positive gear control on July 10, 1930.

These men spend their lifetimes designing the automobiles of America and Europe. They recognized at once that Free Wheeling, as presented by Studebaker, solved a problem as old as motoring—the problem of controlling momentum and putting it to work.

They knew that Free Wheeling, as Studebaker offered it, went straight to the root of applied dynamics—giving the car that offered it a superiority which no car without it could contest.

That is why you are hearing so much more about Free Wheeling today than you did when Studebaker first introduced it. If all cars had it now, the American motoring public would save hundreds of millions of dollars in gasoline and oil expense every year.

CLARK CASE HEARD BY HIGH COURT

Fate of 18th Amendment Rests With Supreme Tribunal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The life of constitutional prohibition tonight was in the keeping of the supreme court.

Within a few weeks it is to hand down a ruling sustaining or invalidating the eighteenth amendment.

Today, it listened intently to arguments supporting and attacking the recent decision of Federal Judge William Clark holding the amendment was improperly ratified because submitted to the state legislatures rather than popular state conventions.

For the government, Solicitor General Thayer contended the court had already settled the issues presented in favor of the validity of the amendment, and that it was within the discretion of congress to choose the mode of ratification.

Supporting the Clark decision, Julius Henry Cohen and Selden Bacon, New York attorneys, maintained it was mandatory that a proposed constitutional amendment, subjecting individual rights to federal control be ratified by state conventions.

Court Room Crowded. The small court room was crowded with spectators. Many members of congress were present. A long line waited outside the door seeking admission.

Only once throughout the entire argument did a member of the court interrupt to ask a question. It is customary for the judges to question counsel freely.

At the outset of the session, Chief Justice Hughes withdrew from the case. He said he had submitted a brief when prohibition was before the court a decade ago and felt this disqualified him.

Thayer's argument was based upon a contention that article V of the constitution clearly had given congress authority to determine the manner in which amendments should be ratified, whether by legislature or convention.

He insisted the court by repeated decisions, especially in the national prohibition cases of 1920, had already decided the discretion of congress in this particular could not be limited or abridged by interpretation of the intentions of the authors of the constitution.

Liberties at Stake. Cohen and Bacon argued the liberties of the people were at stake and that if legislatures could legally abrogate their constitutional rights, then the government would degenerate into a despotic oligarchy.

They made frequent references to the opinions of John Marshall, famed chief justice of the early days of the republic, and to the writings of James Madison, who had an important share in framing the constitution.

The one question asked by the court came from Associate Justice Sutherland. He inquired of Bacon whether it was contended the eighteenth amendment did not have to be submitted to the direct vote of the people.

Bacon's reply was it should have gone to state conventions. When the constitution was written, he said, the people were not thinking of referenda.

Solicitor-General Thayer used but half an hour of the two-hour period assigned to him, and declined to present additional argument after Cohen and Bacon had finished. Their arguments consumed their entire two hours.

A. F. OF L. STUDIES RAIL UNION MERGER

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 21.—(AP)—Plans for the proposed affiliation of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen with the American Federation of Labor were discussed today by members of the executive council of the federation in session here.

William Green, president of the federation, outlining the progress of the move for affiliation, said a conference had been agreed upon prior to the May convention of the brotherhood at which representatives of parties affected would be heard and questions of jurisdiction taken up.

Other matters discussed at the executive session included convict labor and convict labor legislation. Mr. Green said the council decided to request the various state federations to introduce state legislation based on the Hawes-Cooper act which confers upon states authority to prohibit the sale of convict goods made within the state.

A report of the building trades department was not presented to the council today but it is expected to be heard tomorrow, Mr. Green said. Officials of that department were in conference yesterday and today and had announced they would present their report during the afternoon.

48 Wayward Girls, 11 With Infants, Led Before Jurist, Given Asylum

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Chief Magistrate Corrigan, much to his surprise and consternation, found on his hands today 48 allegedly wayward girls, 11 of whom had infants in their arms.

Without knowledge of the magistrate, the girls were brought to New York from the Bedford reformatory for hearings on the legality of their commitments. Testimony before the appellate inquiry into magistrates' courts has been that they were committed on their pleas of guilty, without trial, an allegedly illegal procedure.

Laughing and chatting as though on a frolic, the girls, all of whom are under 21, were placed in a detention cell at women's court. Started court attaches hurried to the chief magistrate.

Those seeking the appointment of Mr. Marshall filed his name in Washington with Attorney-General William D. Mitchell, accompanying the filing with a number of endorsements from Georgia leaders.

Bremen Wrests One Record From Europa

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The liner Bremen has wrested from her sister ship, Europa, the transatlantic speed record between Bremen, Germany, and New York.

With Captain C. W. Hagemann, a relief commander, on the bridge, she docked at her Brooklyn pier yesterday six days and three hours after leaving her home port—surpassing the Europa's speediest crossing by three hours.

The Europa still holds the blue ribbon for the fastest voyage across the Atlantic, however, once held by the Bremen. On March 25, 1930, she steamed from Cherbourg, France, to Ambrose lightship in four days, seventeen hours and six minutes.

MELLON GIVES WARNING ON VET CASH PAYMENT

Secretary Declares Huge Outlay Would Seriously Affect National Finance.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon today reported to the house ways and means committee that the enactment of the Garner bill to pay cash on veterans' compensation certificates would seriously affect national finance and "our general economic situation."

The secretary did not specifically disapprove the measure, but stressed the problems he said it would present. Shortly before his letter was received several hundred legionnaires from Baltimore and other communities near Washington marched to the

Siamese Twins Win $35,000 by Decision
SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 21.—(AP)—A mandatory injunction ordering Myer Myers, former guardian of Daisy and Violet Hilton, Siamese twins, to turn over $35,000 in bonds held in his name to Joe Freeman, receiver, was issued by Judge W. W. McCrory in district court today. The twins brought suit asking appointment of a receiver.

capitol in a demonstration urging legislation to permit cashing of the certificates.

Mellon said the Garner measure would "have far-reaching consequences, not only in its practical destruction of the endowment insurance plan, but in its effect on the finances of the nation and our general economic situation."

He said the bill had been estimated by Veterans' Administrator Hines to involve an outlay of $2,000,000,000, and added:

"I think it will be conceded that the $2,000,000,000 more or less cannot be raised by taxes."

KEY APPROVES PLAN TO AID SEWER PROJECT

Formal Council Request Is Forwarded to County Commission.

Major James L. Key Wednesday quit a sick bed to sign a councilmanic resolution requesting Fulton county to assist the borough in prosecution of a $15,000,000 sewer improvement for Atlanta and its environs.

The measure was transmitted to Henry Wood, clerk of the county commission, by J. Houston Tatum, city clerk, and will be considered at the next meeting of the commission, February 4, it was said.

Although every member of the commission is already on record as favoring giving help to the borough in the projected work, the resolution is a formal one, and designed to compel the borough's and the county's record in the matter.

The mayor remained in his office for several hours during the day, but later in the afternoon he repaired to his home to regain his strength from a slight indisposition he suffered over the week-end, and J. Charlie Murphy, provisional mayor pro tem, was called to the mayor's chair.

In addition to approving the sewer measure, the mayor signed another paper providing for establishment of a board consisting of two members of the board of education, two from council and four leading Atlanta citizens to work out proposed changes in the borough charter which will empower the board to levy and expend its own finances independent of the mayor and general council. He will name the committee at a later date, he said.

R. H. JONES HEADS PRINCETON ALUMNI

Robert H. Jones, Jr., well-known Atlanta attorney, has been signally honored by the Princeton alumni of Atlanta by his election as president of the Princeton Alumni Association, succeeding Hugh Foster, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta.

Mr. Jones was elected at the annual dinner meeting Tuesday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Norman Coolidge, financier, was named to succeed Postmaster E. K. Dr. Richard G. Albion, for eight years a member of the faculty of Princeton, who was touring the south, was principal speaker at the meeting. Dr. Albion was house guest of Mr. Jones, who is a member of the graduate council of the university, and it was learned that the professor is in this section for contact work between the graduate council of the university and the alumni association.

Among other prominent guests at the dinner was Willford S. Conrow, whose portrait exhibition has evoked widespread comment at the High Museum of Art. Mr. Conrow is a graduate of Princeton's class of 1901.

GANDHI STUDIES M'DONALD STAND

POONA, British India, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, in prison here for his civil disobedience campaign, devoted this day to a study of Ramsay MacDonald's declaration of British policy in India.

He has been supplied with a dozen newspapers in English and the vernacular, but it was considered doubtful that he would give any indication of his views, for it was understood even before his imprisonment that he considered himself only an instrument of the congress party and not in a position to announce its policies without a mandate from the party.

DR. JULIUS KLEIN SEES BETTER DAYS

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The opinion that business revivals invariably start when "the howling of professional mourners" are loudest was expressed last night by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of the United States department of commerce, before the National Food Brokers' convention.

"Watch your markets," Dr. Klein said, "Beware of mass mania. Mere size and volume are not true symbols of American success; remember that the dinosaur, which beat every other creature in the world on mass production—below the ears—has been out of existence for several million years."

United States To Join World Court General O'Ryan, on Visit Here, Says

The United States ultimately will enter the World Court, in the opinion of Major General John F. O'Ryan, war-time commander of the twenty-seventh division of the American expeditionary forces and vice president of American Airways, Inc., who arrived in Atlanta Wednesday night.

General O'Ryan made it clear that his trip to Atlanta is purely in connection with aeronautical matters, explaining that lines operated by his company converge in this city, and that he is on an inspection trip of facilities. He praised the new southern transcontinental air route between Atlanta and Los Angeles, saying that it had several advantages over other and more northerly routes.

This afternoon, over Station WSB, General O'Ryan, who is chairman of the national committee on the World Court movement in America, will deliver an address on that subject. He interviewed at the Atlanta Biltmore Wednesday evening he expressed his firm conviction that senate advocates of affiliation with that tribunal will emerge victorious.

Pointing out that the United States, by its isolation from other nations in the matter of the court was creating international resentment against America, General O'Ryan said:

"It is the man behind the gun not the gun itself which is the menace to peace. Man, with his acquisitiveness, credulity, gallantry, emotionalism, determination, courage and willingness to die—composite man with these attributes and many others which add to the complexity of his being—he is the problem. Only in him and with his willingness and co-operation can the solution of the war evil be found."

"Every so often in the past," the general added, "man has developed a collective war complex and has gone off on a military spree, later to suffer the evils of his debauch. On these occasions he has used whatever weapons were at hand, with or without limitation. He will continue to do so until he is stopped by the effectiveness of world organization created to replace war."

PADUCAH, Ky., Jan. 21.—(AP)—George M. He said:

"I want to ask that my friends and of my son-in-law, Charles Clark, do not agitate the unfortunate occurrence any more. County officials have assured that the negro will be given a speedy trial and proper punishment will be meted to him."

TAX IN KENTUCKY ON STORES UPHELD

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 21.—(AP)—The Kentucky gross sales tax on retail stores, passed by the 1930 general assembly, today was declared constitutional by Judge T. B. McGreggor in Franklin circuit court here.

Judge McGreggor ruled that it does not violate the personal rights and special privileges clauses of the state and federal constitutions.

The decision will be appealed. Another suit attacking the constitutionality of the act is pending in federal court at Covington. The case is expected to be carried to the supreme court.

The act placed a tax on the gross annual sales of all retail stores in Kentucky.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention, it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate with no harmful after-effects.

Once you learn this perfect way you'll never deal in any other manner with the headaches, gas, bloating, nausea, dizziness, indigestion, biliousness, etc., due to an over-acid stomach and bowels.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips'. It is always a liquid; never made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle. All drug stores—25c and 50c.—(adv.)

Mercer Defeats Y Triangles; Purple Fives Win Double-Header

Young Stribling Plans To Aid Tech in Staging Boxing Tourneys

By Ed Danforth

At several gatherings recently where prominent figures in athletics in our section discussed the State of Things and What Is the Matter With the Sitchachun, this reporter was surprised to hear one and all admit that football was over-emphasized in the neighborhood.

This column with its head in the sand had clung tenaciously to the belief that football was all right, that if anything it was not properly emphasized. This column always has contended that "over-emphasis" was simply a complex, a phobia peculiar to educators.

However, the idea seems to have become pretty general now among the ruder intellects of coaches, alumni members of athletic boards, officials and even sporting goods dealers.

In fact, when I heard one sporting goods dealer solemnly declare that "something had to be done" about the over-play football is getting, I decided to change what I have been jocularly referring to as my own mind. Can you imagine a man who sells footballs thinking the game over-emphasized?

"CARTAGO DELEDA EST"

The change in public attitude toward the football problem is a demonstration of the truism: If you keep telling them it is so, they finally will believe it.

Old What's His Name demonstrated that in the Roman senate by arising ever once in so often from his bench and declaring "Cartago deleuda est." Rome finally got so tired hearing him sound off that they went out and deleuda-ed Carthage and it still est, according to last reports.

Regularly once a week some educator breaks into print with the statement that football is over-emphasized—year in and year out the average is once a week with the barrage intensified during the winter when they have their conventions and adopt resolutions to that effect.

Now everybody believes it. It has been accepted—even by sporting goods salesmen. Perhaps the educators gathered a lesson from the old Roman (it was Cicero, wasn't it?). Which goes to prove there is something in higher education after all.

REMEDIES SUGGESTED.

Now that everybody agrees that football is over-emphasized, everybody has a remedy, except the educators. Educators have been complaining about it for years on end, but never have suggested a remedy.

The coaches, officials and sporting goods salesmen have in one bound gone a furlong ahead of the faculty members. I heard six or eight different remedies the other day at a session over the tea cups.

Ed Thorpe, for instance, who is all three—coach-official-salesman—believes that if 18 football games are played in each season the emphasis will be relieved.

Twice a week games would necessitate more players, produce fewer stars, cut attendance down and avoid attaching so much importance to single games.

One suspects that in recommending 18 games of football a year Mr. Thorpe was speaking as an official and sports goods salesman, not as a coach. The biggest objection to this system would come from coaches.

MAKE BOYS PASS EXAMS.

However, being untutored by any problem of this nature, I can offer a solution. It is compounded from several opinions of coaches, etc., and is not exactly original.

Let a small group of institutions—say eight—be formed in our section. Let a central board of examination be appointed from the faculties of those institutions. Let this central board give entrance examinations to every prospective student who desired to play football or take part in any athletics.

Only those students who could pass this standard entrance examination would be eligible for sports. Those who failed could enter on their high school credits as they do now, but they could never participate in sports.

An added requirement of scholarship would be that every athlete must be pursuing courses leading to a standard degree. This would bar students in certain courses in physical culture, bee-keeping and Roman numerals from the athletic teams.

Such a scholarship qualification, uniform at the member schools, would elevate and dignify the athletic teams in the eyes of the student body and the public. It would assure that bona fide students were on the teams. As it is in the Southern conference now, men have been refused entrance in one school of high standards and gone immediately over to another school and entered without trouble.

TAKES COURAGE.

That, roughly, is a plan that would raise the football team above the arrows and slings of faculty criticism.

But there are two great objections to it. One is: It would result in mighty poor football teams for many years to come.

The other is that no eight institutions in our section have the courage to set up a standard entrance examination requirement.

THE HEIGHT OF SOMETHING OR OTHER.

Well, the Wickersham report was dry to the dregs and wet to the wets. Both sides are pleased but puzzled.

Garden's Florida Bout To Be Handled by 'Pa'

Pa Stribling will leave this morning for Miami by airplane to begin preparations for staging a winter fight for Madison Square Garden in their arena.

Pa was in communication with W. F. Carey, of the Garden, yesterday afternoon and was promised the arena in which Jack Sharkey fought Phil Scott last year. Pa is making an effort to land Paulino Uzcudun and Tuffy Griffiths for the feature match.

W. L. and Mrs. Stribling left at midnight for Macon in Stribling's plane. W. L. had a dove shoot on the program for this morning.

TRIANGLES BOW TO MERCER FIVE; B.H.S. WINS PAIR

Tech High and G. M. A. Bow to Purples; A. C. Is Winner.

All the drama that is basketball's by tradition was displayed on the midday Y. M. C. A. court here Wednesday night as a flashing, fighting crew of Bears from Mercer University took a 40-35 decision from the Atlanta Y Triangles.

The visitors, unaccustomed to playing within such narrow confines as those afforded by the Luckie street gym, lost the lead twice at the start of the game and each time came back to tie. They took the lead for their own the second time and held on until the midway mark, leaving with a 24-17 advantage. They held a plan-of-battle conference during the halves, came out with new tactics, and were overhauled and passed by the fighting Y club. And then they came back to blank the Y and score themselves a block of points—and win.

Brock got the opening points on a tricky back-hand shot. He and Fincher and O'Connor kept the scoring going on apiece until there were 10 points in the Y bag, when Campbell, Smith, Matt and Wilkes—the scorers of the Bear club—unlimbered their big guns and cracked away to push the Triangles out of the lead and keep ahead until the half whistle blew.

The Bears played the right game during that first half. They changed their plans between halves, however, electing to draw the Triangle defense down the court until it became an offense, in effect. And the effect was to prevent any Mercer points to speak of and to pad the Y total until the count stood at 30-20 in favor of the home hopes.

Mercer tried a hybrid system which sent the Y lead up to 35-31. And then the Bears slipped back into their old original style—and that was all. The Y never counted again; Mercer pounded along to nine more points and the ball game.

O. Y. class nosed out the Western Heights Baptist quintet, 22-20, in a fast preliminary game.

Mercer University's basketball team will end its two-day stay in Atlanta with a game tonight at 8:30 o'clock against the Jewish Progressive Club on the South Pryor street court. It will be a return game, as the Progressives were defeated early in January on the Macon court in the opening of Mercer's schedule.

Purple Fives Win Two Games.

Boys' High basketball teams scored a double victory Wednesday afternoon on the Henry Grady court in the third round of the "Big Three" schedule. The Purple A team defeated Tech High, 24 to 16, to gain leadership of the league, while the Purple B team trounced G. M. A., 35 to 12, to take second place in the B standings.

Both were well earned victories. Boys' High's attack was one of the best that has been exhibited in previous circles in recent years, while the Purple defense was also fine, particularly in the first half. Boys' High was leading, 20 to 2, at the intermission, and both Smith points were from foul tries.

In the preliminary B game, Boys' High was an easy victor. They were leading G. M. A., 14 to 6, at the half and put on more steam in the second period to increase the margin of victory. Cooperation and excellent passing sent the Cadets down to their second defeat of the year.

Baby Jackets Beat Gordon.

Playing a careful game, the Tech freshman basketball team handed the Gordon Institute courtmen of Barnesville, a 36-to-26 defeat at the Tech gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

W. L. (Young) Stribling, Georgia boy who meets Max Schmeling, of Germany, in June for the world's heavyweight boxing title, visited the Georgia Tech boxing class Wednesday and gave the boys a few lessons. He is shown here "breaking" a couple of the boys. Left to right, Max Morris, Young Stribling and Quinten Adams. Stribling was introduced as "the next heavyweight champion of the world" and got an enthusiastic reception from the Jacket squad and the fans who gathered for the "lesson" given the boxers. HUNTER TO JOIN TILDEN AS PRO

Former Ranking Net Star To Make Debut on February 18.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Francis T. Hunter, former doubles partner of William T. Tilden, member of the United States Davis cup team and second ranking tennis player in the United States for two years, decided today to join his friend and partner on his professional tour.

Hunter announced he would make his professional debut along with Tilden in Madison Square Garden on February 18. He will not accompany Tilden on his professional tour. Hunter is engaged in the publishing business in New Rochelle, N. Y.

A veteran player, famed for his powerful drives, Hunter never has been able to scale the peak of the national championship. On two occasions he was runner-up.

Tilden Is Happy Over Hunter's Action.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(UP)—William T. (Big Bill) Tilden was all smiles tonight when asked by the United Press what he thought of Francis T. Hunter's decision to join him in a series of professional tennis engagements.

"I was mighty glad when Frank told me he had decided to play with me," Tilden said. "Not only because he is such a close friend of mine, but because he is such a fine player." Tilden said that while Hunter would not be with him on all his tour, the New Rochelle star would engage in more than a few of the matches.

"It will be a pleasure to have Frank as a doubles partner again," Big Bill said.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 21.—The Australian Lawn Tennis Association has received a cable from William T. Tilden stating that he is planning to tour Australia with four players during the latter part of this year.

Five More Boxers Enter Ring Meet

Interest in the city's annual boxing championship tournament slated for Friday and Saturday nights in the Atlanta Athletic Club gymnasium increased Wednesday when five new entrants were received by Joe Bean at the club.

The latest entries include: Jack Morgan, 135; Benny Johnson, 128; Jim McCoy, 135; Dewey Nix, 135; and Elmer Holland, 114.

The tournament will be run under the A. A. U. rules and each bout will be three rounds with two-minute intervals. A fourth round will be permitted in case of a draw. Regular boxing classes are held every afternoon at 5:30 o'clock and more than a dozen youngsters are taking advantage of the opportunity to prepare for the tournament.

Mehre Plans To Move Maddox to Pivot Post

Georgia Coach Casts About for Ways of Strengthening "Two Team" Project.

Red Maddox, the salmon-topped guard who has been one of Georgia's greatest linemen for the past two years, will be at center when the varsity men report for spring practice next month over Athens way.

This move, considered last season by Coach Harry Mehre, will be put into immediate effect this spring. The center and tackle positions bob up as the main problems of the Bulldogs this year.

Demi-tasse Tassapoulis, the 1930 center who came through with some remarkably consistent play, has graduated. McWhorter, the substitute last season, returns, as do some freshmen.

But Mehre will try Maddox at the pivot job in an effort to make it stronger.

Vinny To Follow Bob and 'Big Bill'

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Vincent Richards is going to follow Bobby Jones and Bill Tilden into the movies. The professional tennis champion of the world has been signed to make two Pathé-Grantland Rice Spotlight films, it was announced today.

He will demonstrate and describe tennis styles and point-winning plays.

Crackers To Play Macks March 30

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—(UP)—As a polishing process for the 1931 baseball campaign the Athletics will play 12 games with major league rivals in Florida this year, then come to meet the Phillies in the annual spring city championship. Training season games were announced today as follows:

March 7, 8—Cardinals at Miami.
March 10—Cardinals at Fort Myers.
March 11—Braves at St. Petersburg.
March 12—Cincinnati at Tampa.
March 13—Cardinals at Bradenton.
March 14—Brooklyn at Ft. Myers.
March 15—Cincinnati at Ft. Myers.
March 16—Braves at Ft. Myers.
March 17—Jacksonville at Jacksonville.
March 18—Atlanta at Atlanta.
April 1—Greenville at Greenville, S. C.
April 2—Charlotte at Charlotte, N. C.
Manager Mack, who does not accompany the team on its pre-season contests, ordered most of the training games to be played at the Ft. Myers base this year so that he can better keep in touch with the situation. He also will have more regular-yannigan bouts this spring, as he wishes to study his rookies in action.

OAR CHAMP RETIRES.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Charles J. McIlwaine, Jr., Olympic champion oarsman, today announced his retirement from competitive rowing in order to devote his time to business.

VOLS TO INVADE FLATS TONIGHT

Shifts of Three Games Made in Jacket Court Card.

Owing to shifts in the Georgia Tech basketball schedule, Tennessee's Vols will invade the Flats tonight, instead of last night, as had originally been arranged. Other changes include the postponing of the Tech-Kentucky game in Atlanta from next Saturday night until February 16 and the postponing of the Tech-Auburn game on January 28 to Auburn from the court at the Flats.

Led by Bobby Dodd in his usual role of director of activities and with Corbett to act as point-scoring de luxe, the Vols are counted on to give the Jackets at least a great battle. On the strength of the showing of the two teams against Georgia, Tennessee will carry the burden of the favored club into action.

"That favorite role is likely to mean little, however, should the Tech squad which takes the court be the same 'new-life,' almost over-careless crew which handed Florida at 32-23 lacing at the Flats Tuesday night."

The "Insouciant" took that decision by reason of a first half in which they played with drunken inspiration; a first half in which they scored 23 points to but 8 for their foes, and that without undue exertion. The "Insouciant" further solidified their claims to the new title in the second half, however, with the inspiration at such a low ebb that the "Gators" won a period's decision at 15 points to 9. Whirlwind passes and shots which had found the mark surely if surprisingly in the first half, strayed far from the charted paths in the second.

And if the "Insouciant" can play the Vols on a first-half basis, those Vols are in for a neat trimming. Last-minute tactics on the part of Tech, however, will pave the way for a "reversed and remanded" verdict, from which there is no out.

It will, in all probability, take quite an armful of inspiration to trim the Dodd-Corbitt Company. The lads from over Knoxville way play basketball as is basketball. And they play it incessantly. Which means that any lapses in the Tech camp will be fatal.

Coach Roy Munderoff is expected to nominate Wages and Tate, guards; Perkins, center, and Gooding and Phillips, forwards, as the starting Tech lineup, while Dodd and O'Connor, guards; Greenblatt, center, and Corbett and Reeder, forwards, will probably furnish the early opposition.

A few in the south have done it now and then. Coach W. A. Alexander had what amounted to two teams in 1928. He won a national championship, two splendid teams, in 1929. He was undefeated and won in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

Two teams sounds easy enough. It is not.

RING POINTERS GIVEN JACKETS BY CHALLENGER

W. L. Explains Different Styles in Ring—Is Guest at Tech.

By Ralph McGill.

W. L. (Young) Stribling, who meets Max Schmeling in June for the world's heavyweight boxing title, will aid Georgia Tech in putting on boxing tournaments late this month and in March if free to do so, he said Wednesday while visiting the Tech boxing class.

W. L., accompanied by "Pa" Stribling, was a guest of the class and its coach, Mike Chambers. The boxers and a number of students and other athletic coaches heard the famous Georgian tell the Jacket boxers some of his own experiences and some pointers on the game.

For the first time in his public career W. L. Stribling explained why he became a "puncher" only in recent years.

"In practice here don't pull your punches," said W. L. "When I started I boxed for a number of years with my younger brother. I pulled my punches and it took me years to get over the habit."

"When you hit a man and hurt him, just stop for a while. Don't follow it up. But don't pull your punches. It is a bad habit to drop into."

In speaking of the different boxing styles, W. L. went into that used by Dempsey and by Tunney.

"There is no set style for a boxer," said Stribling. "Tunney stood up and hit straight away with what we call straight punches. Dempsey crouched and bobbed. Dempsey was a hooker and a puncher. He could never have used Tunney's style. Tunney could never have used his."

"I think that the straight punching style is better for beginners. It is easier to learn and the punches are just as effective."

W. L. gave a few lessons in fighting, showing the Jacket boxers how to block the punches in close and how to keep the hands inside and rip into an opponent's body.

"Pa," he said, "can't you say something about it? You usually can," he said, and walked to the crowd.

NOT BRUTAL. "Boxing is no longer regarded as a brutal sport," he said. "In the use of rubber mouthpieces and headgear has made it not impossible to get hurt. Boxing is an all-around game. I think it is the greatest one of them all."

"Pa" promised the Jackets that it possible he and W. L. would stand the two tournaments, will hold an elimination tournament on January 28 and 29. Later in March the school championship matches will be staged.

The crowd which turned out to greet Stribling gave him and "Pa" an enthusiastic welcome. Head Coach W. A. Alexander thanked them for their interest in the Tech boxing class.

Schmeling Sails For America.

BREMEN, Germany, Jan. 21.—(AP) Max Schmeling, German boxer, sailed for New York today aboard the Europa.

Schmeling said he intended to go in training immediately for a series of exhibition bouts in Baltimore and 48 other American southern and southwestern cities, and Havana. He is to fight W. L. Stribling, of Georgia, in June for the title.

Niehoff To Confer With Boss Engel

Bert Niehoff, former Cracker manager, now skipper of Joe Engel's Chattanooga Lookouts, will meet Engel in Chattanooga Friday to make plans for spring training.

The matter of contracts for the Lookouts also will be gone into and dates set for reporting.

Bert has started a deal that he hopes will develop him as a trainer for the Lookouts. Daily is operating a health club here, and handled the unruly lineaments for the Crackers when Bert was pilot.

Bob and Jimmy Are All Square, 2 Fish, 2 Quail

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 21.—(AP) Bob Jones, the four-way golf champion, and Jimmy Johnston, former amateur champion, are great home state boosters. For years they have lived with each other—and right now Jim plenty of black bass would be caught.

When Bobby was in Minnesota for the national open at Interlachen last summer, Jimmy undertook to prove what he had said about Minnesota as a great fishing state. One bright morning he got Bobby into a boat on Lake Minnetonka, assuring him plenty of black bass would be caught.

Bobby got a splendid sunburn on his neck, and during the tournament it was so sore he could scarcely turn his head. Two fish, a small bass and a pickerel, was the total catch.

Last week Jimmy went to Atlanta. Bobby prevailed on him to stay one day longer than he had intended for a quail shoot, assuring him plenty of quail would be shot.

The bag was two quail, makes us all even.

principals in the mystery. "It will take my office several days to go into it thoroughly, which we are going to do."

Young Pharr was only 19 years old instead of 26 as originally reported.

Smith and Jackson were to have been given a hearing in recorder's court Wednesday afternoon but this was postponed one week to permit further investigation on the part of the police and prosecutor's office.

OF THE THINGS YOU CAN DO
WITH A HALF-YEAR'S SALARY

Have you ever realized that if you will save just one-tenth of what you make, regularly, you will have accumulated a full half-year's salary—in five short years? It's true . . . and, in addition, the interest during that time will amount to more than a month's earnings.

Resolve now that you and your family deserve at least that much of what you make as a financial reserve for yourselves. Just ten per cent. So little that you'll never miss it after the first few months . . . yet enough, in a few brief years, to enable you to have many of the things you have always wanted.

Music Club Hears Reception Given Major Gen. O'Ryan

The Atlanta Music Club, Mrs. Walter H. Bedard, president, presented a program yesterday morning in Wesley Memorial auditorium when Dean Raimundo De Oviés, of St. Philip's cathedral, addressed the club, and Dr. Ben J. Potter, organist at Trinity Methodist church, rendered two organ solos. Mrs. Grace Lee Toy was chairman of the study course, arranged for the program.

Dean De Oviés outlined the development of art as an expression of human emotions and feelings, tracing the development of the dance from the earliest instinctive expressions, the development of painting, from its recreation by the performer, stressing the useless value of notes and signs on paper—music in a dormant state—and the infinite moving power in the same composition when recreated by an artist, and given to the listener as an expression of a thought immortalized.

Dr. Ben J. Potter opened the program with an organ solo, "Introduction and Allegro," from sonata in D by the English composer, Edward Bach. His closing number was his own arrangement from the hand score of Gounod's "Military March in E Flat."

At the business meeting preceding the program Mrs. Walter Bedard gave an interesting account of the recent convention of the Civic Concert Service, Inc., at Chicago, which was attended by representatives from over 200 cities of the United States. Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore read a letter from Miss Dena Harshbarger, president and general manager of the Civic Concert Service, Inc., of Chicago and New York, paying tribute to Mrs. Bedard.

Announcement was made of the magnificent gift of the Atlanta Music Club and Civic Music Association in the form of a concert by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, February 10, at the auditorium-annex, to be given to the music loving people of Atlanta. All teachers may secure complimentary tickets for their pupils, and the children of the public schools will be given admission. All students at all schools and colleges in Atlanta who are interested in orchestral music will be given complimentary tickets and are requested to write or come to Phillips & Crew's to secure these tickets—without cost—on Monday, February 9. Persons renewing their memberships for next year, or new members subscribing for next year before February 10 will be given their membership for next year plus an extra ticket for the Minneapolis Symphony concert.

The ticket sale for the Paderewski concert, February 8, will be open to club members at 12 o'clock Wednesday, January 28, at Phillips & Crew's and to the public on Thursday, January 29.

The next meeting of the club will be held February 4 at 8 o'clock.

Here's Sanitary Protection that really fits, really protects

Kotex is specially designed to fit inconspicuously, and it is so soft and comfort-giving besides.

YOU know what a relief it is to feel entirely free of self-consciousness at times when sanitary protection is necessary. To feel well groomed, comfortable, at ease.

That's the feeling Kotex gives you. Kotex, with its skillful shaping; its rounded corners; its soft filler. And it is so easy to dispose of!

Why Kotex is so absorbent. It is amazingly absorbent, you know. And there is a special reason for that. You see, it is made of fold upon fold of a dainty material, and each of these delicate layers is a quick, complete absorbent in itself.

Kotex absorbs laterally, not in one concentrated area, but away from the surface. That is why it stays comfortable so much longer than the ordinary sanitary pad.

It may be worn on either side, with equal efficiency, with no danger of possible embarrassment from wrong adjustment.

Try Kotex yourself. Enjoy the same care scrupulous hospitals give their patients.

Kotex Company, Chicago, Ill.

IN HOSPITALS...

1—The Kotex absorbent is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.

2—Kotex is soft... not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, fleecy softness.

3—Deodorizes... by a special, thoroughly, by a special process.

4—Can be worn on either side with equal efficiency.

There will also be a short sermon by the rector, Rev. W. W. Menninger. The offertory will be "When to the Temple Mary Went," by Arthur B. Jennings, Jr., who is one of the most modern American composers. This music is in the style of a novelty composition. The offertory will be "Before the Heavens Were Spread Abroad," by Horatio W. Parker, who is regarded as the outstanding American composer of church music, both in this country and in England. Soloists of the choir are Mesdames J. C. Richardson, S. G. Stokes and Frank A. Cundell and Ed Bray. The order of the service will be the regular evening prayer. The complete musical program is as follows: Organ, solemn prelude, from the "Gloria Domini," "Noble, professional," "From the Eastern Mountains," "Valour," Gloria Patri, Woodward; Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, in F. Hawley; responses; anthem, "When to the Temple Mary Went," Jennings; hymn, "Brightest and Best," Morning Star; Dresden Anthem, offertory, "Before the Heavens Were Spread Abroad," Parker; recessional, "The Spacious Firmament," Creation, and organ postlude, "Night," Jenkins.

Georgia Boy is Strongest

"MY son, David, suffered with his stomach and bowels until he was quite listless and weak," says Mrs. M. Austin, 1443 Fairbanks St., Atlanta.

"Now it's a different story as you can see from his picture. He's strong and full of life. I gave him California Fig Syrup because mother used it. It increased his appetite, helped him wonderfully. Since then I have used California Fig Syrup with both my children for colds and upsets."

To show how California Fig Syrup acts to build-up and strengthen half-sick, headachy, constipated children through giving tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels, nothing could be more convincing than praise like this.

Your doctor will approve the use of this pure vegetable product—as often as an impure breath, coated tongue, listlessness, feverishness or lack of appetite warn of constipation—or to keep bowels from clogging during colds or children's upsets.

When buying, look for the word California on carton and bottle. That marks the genuine.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough. You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles. Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded. (adv.)

INSTALLMENT LII.

"Yet you still live here, as if you were waiting for him?"

"What else could I do? It is the only home I have, and the only money I have to live on. I've no place else to go." Maria stated the facts calmly, without a trace of self-pity.

"But you could have broken the will—easily. Mrs. de la Montanya was evidently of unsound mind when she made it. It wouldn't have stood in any court. Then you'd have fallen heir to the whole property, clear, as next of kin," Peter suggested.

"Judith was good to me. Of course I couldn't do that to her, after she was dead. The wrinkled old face no longer reminded Peter of wet sand. Its stern lines had the austerity of stone. There was utter finality in that 'of course'."

Peter leaned forward. This strange old lady had all her wits about her—and she had character. She held grimly to her outmoded code. He owed it to her to trust her—and she was worth trusting. Moreover, her smile was eager, gaily, Peter suspected that it would not be an easy matter to pull the wool over her eyes.

"I don't believe that the whole truth could have come out 11 years ago," he said earnestly. "For reasons of my own, I'm deeply interested in finding out everything I can about that tragedy, and what led up to it. I'm asking for your confidence, and you have no reason to give it to me. But I'd appreciate your help."

"It's a long time since anyone thought my help worth asking—you don't know what a skillful tempter you are!" Maria again her smile was like the glow of a dying fire. "As for my confidence, I give it to those I think deserve it. I've lived a long time, and I've seen many faces. I'm an old, old woman, but you won't be embarrassed when I say that I like your face!"

"I think you say beautiful things very beautifully," Peter answered gravely. But he was profoundly grateful that Maria was not there to hear this dear old coquette say that she liked his face. It was something the Herald staff would not soon have allowed him to live down. "By the way, did you know that Lynn has been released from prison?" he asked, uncomfortably aware that his ears had reddened.

"No, I didn't know it—but I'm glad."

"You weren't satisfied then? You thought there was something in Lynn's story?"

"No, I don't believe in ghosts—though Judith told me it was most impolite to call them ghosts. I only meant that there is enough sorrow in the world. I wouldn't wish any more of it—to anyone. If you thought I could tell you anything more about the murder than was found out at the time, I'm afraid I can't help at all."

It seemed very queer that Lynn should leave that money right in his trunk for the police to find, if he stole it. But then, I never had the advantage of the police in associating with the criminal classes, so I suppose they knew their own business best."

"Then you do believe they were wrong? You do think there was something more?" Peter flung himself forward with boyish abandon and seized both the old lady's hands in his.

"Of course I do," Peter became aware that Cousin Maria's most unusual utterances were prefaced by the firmly casual phrase, "of course."

"But then, you must allow for prejudice."

"What sort of prejudice?"

"You began by asking about souls, and you were on the right track. I have nothing against Jerome. Nobody ever had. Yet I've never rid myself of the idea that Jerome's soul had more to do with his death than appeared. But then, of course, I never liked his soul."

"Maybe you think that living here alone has made me queer, too?" There was nothing apologetic in Cousin Maria's tone. Peter, bending forward, looked into eyes whose vital intelligence age had been powerless to quench.

"Let's be queer together then," he said. "I've been here 11 years, and that isn't far enough. I've been clinging for dear life to proper little facts that can be labeled and put in a box, and they haven't led me anywhere."

"I'm just as befuddled as I was at the beginning. I don't know what good it's going to be—but anyway it's sure to be interesting, so suppose you give me your impressions of the Montanya family. Something might bob up. If anyone had both the opportunity and the wit to know them thoroughly, it was you."

Cousin Maria flushed faintly under Peter's enthusiasm. Evidently she felt her own heightened color, for she said, "It's very nice to be made to blush again. There's been nothing worth blushing about for a long time."

"Nobody else felt as I did about Jerome," she said. "Of course it was sheer contrariness on my part. I ought to have been glad that he wasn't like David. Instead of that, despite all the trouble he caused us, I was glad that David wasn't like Jerome. I might have been a little bit like David myself if things had been different—but of course, being a girl, I never had a chance to be sinful."

Peter could not resist smiling at her simple regret that girls were restricted to virtue by rigid necessity.

"When I think of them as boys, it doesn't seem long ago—not nearly as long ago as the night that Jerome was killed. I came here when they were quite little, to be a companion to Cousin Judith after her husband died. It didn't take me long to see that while Judith always said that she loved both of her children the same, it was not of equal things that you say from the lips out."

"I don't believe it takes you long to see anything," Peter beamed upon her with delighted flattery.

"Yes, when you're old, and have nothing to say that sort of compliment to my eyes, the old lady answered tartly. "They were more interested in looking at them than what they looked at. But then, ladies weren't supposed to have brains in those days. It was almost as bad to be clever as to have a squint. At least I haven't the squint, thank goodness!"

"Indeed you haven't! And I'm sure you're reconciled to being clever by this time," Peter declared.

Monument To Commemorate Life of Benjamin Hawkins

Grave Near Roberta of Member of Washington's Staff Will Be Marked by Government.

ROBERTA, Ga., Jan. 21.—(P)—Five miles west of Roberta on the banks of the Flint river, in an unmarked grave, rest the remains of Colonel Benjamin Hawkins, a member of Washington's staff during the revolution, and one time senator from North Carolina.

Plans are under way to erect a monument in this little city, to honor the patriot and friend of the Indians, and to call attention to the grave near here.

The site for the monument is in the center of the business section of town and was given by the city of Roberta to the Jeffersonian Hawkins chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The local chapter was named for the daughter of Colonel Hawkins. The government has appropriated a sum of money for the erection of the marker and the local chapter has accepted the design, a sketch of which was recently submitted. This marker has been recommended to the war department.

The monument will bear the following inscription, which will convey to all who pause to read it, the esteem and reverence the memory of Colonel Hawkins is held in the hearts of Georgia people:

"Erected in 1931 by the United States government to commemorate the life and public service of Colonel Benjamin Hawkins, who was born in Warren county, North Carolina, August 15, 1754, and died at the Creek Indian agency on the Flint river, Georgia, June 6, 1816. He was a student at Princeton, and shortly after the beginning of the revolution he became a member of Washington's staff with the rank of colonel, serving with distinction throughout the war. He was one of the first senators from North Carolina and was conspicuous for his interest in Indian affairs. He was elected by Washington to assume jurisdiction over all Indian tribes south of the Ohio river.

"At the height of his career he came to Georgia and established his home among the Creek Indians, on the banks of the Flint river in Crawford county. Colonel Hawkins built the fort which was named in his honor, on the Ocmulgee river at Macon, and lived there while the fort was being erected, but his permanent home was at the Creek agency.

"His body lies on a bluff overlooking the Flint river where he lived among the savage tribes for 10 years—a man of letters, a mediator of peace, and faithful to death."

PLAYED PART IN EARLY HISTORY OF MACON.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 21.—(P)—Colonel Benjamin Hawkins, to whose memory a marker will be erected soon in Crawford county, shares honors with Nathaniel Macon in the early history of this city.

Fort Hawkins, which was established here as a protector for the whites against the Creek Indians, was located in East Macon, now a part of the city of Macon.

Local Daughters of the American Revolution several months ago started a movement to erect a replica of old Fort Hawkins on the original site and this is to be carried out as soon as possible. It is planned to make the old fort a center for the collection of historical matter to house Indian relics, old maps, documents, etc., telling of the early struggles of the white men in this part of Georgia.

Close to the site of the old fort is the present Fort Hawkins school, one of the finest brick grammar school buildings in Macon.

Way to Get At A Cold Is Through the Bowels

As soon as you catch cold, the pores close; perspiration is checked. Gases and waste can't escape through the skin. That's why your doctor's first advice in case of colds is a mild laxative like Cascara. Medical authorities agree it actually strengthens the bowels. You get cascara in its most pleasant form in candy Cascara.

Remember this when you catch cold; whenever headach is bad; tongue coated; or you're headachy, bilious, constipated.

Why resort to harsher things when Cascara's activate the bowels so quickly, so harmlessly and pleasantly—and cost only a dime!—(adv.)

Mrs. Sarah Powers, Doomed to Die, Spends Her 74th Birthday in Cell

MACON, Ga., Jan. 21.—(P)—Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Powers, under death sentence in connection with the murder of James W. Parks, young Hapeville printer, Tuesday observed her seventy-fourth birthday in her cell in Bibb county jail.

It was a quiet day for the gray-haired woman, who for nearly two years has been confined in the jail. Her case is now before the Georgia supreme court for review.

Mrs. Powers spent most of the day in bed, suffering from a chronic ailment which has produced dizziness. The routine of the afternoon was broken by a visit by her daughter, Mrs. Lee Tharpe, and an Evening News reporter. Mrs. Tharpe is a daily visitor to her mother except when extremely adverse weather conditions prevail.

A little table in the cell was stacked with a number of letters containing birthday greetings sent by local friends, and by other friends residing in many distant cities, including Washington, Detroit and Toronto.

Earl Manchester, Michigan youth, is also under sentence of death for the slaying of Parks. Several months ago his sentence was affirmed by the supreme court.

PLANT WILL RESUME FULL-TIME OPERATION

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 21.—(P)—The H. T. Hull, local manager of the Mexican Petroleum Corporation of Georgia, announced Wednesday resumption of a full-time schedule of hours within a week or 10 days, and a $35,000 addition to the plant by erection of a "cut-back" asphalt plant.

The plant has been operating on a four-day week basis for several weeks because of repairs being made to one of the distillation plants. It will resume its six-day a week operation.

The addition will consist of a separate distillation unit, tank, and other equipment for making asphalt to be applied in a cold state. Work will begin on it in about three weeks, it was said.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Jan. 21.—(P)—Mrs. C. E. Montfort was aroused early Wednesday by the persistent barking of a police dog owned by Mr. Montfort and awoke to find her home afire.

The dog's alarm enabled an early call to the fire department and damage was confined to an estimated several hundred dollars. Most of the household goods were saved.

MOTORIST SAVES SEVEN FROM BURNING HOME

MACON, Ga., Jan. 21.—(P)—The lives of seven people were probably saved by the alertness of an early morning motorist who discovered the home of Jake Bailey, ablaze before dawn Wednesday, and gave an alarm which resulted in Mr. and Mrs. Bailey and five small children escaping from the burning structure just before the walls caved in.

Struck admitted he had been selling whisky for some time and that he had met Hadden on the night he was slain for the purpose of delivering Hadden some whisky.

Gaston admitted he had been selling whisky for some time and that he had met Hadden on the night he was slain for the purpose of delivering Hadden some whisky.

The case is expected to reach the jury Thursday.

OVERCOME BY SMOKE, MACON WOMAN DIES

MACON, Ga., Jan. 21.—(P)—Mrs. Laura McGuyrt, 63, was overcome by smoke in her home here early Wednesday morning and died after doctors in Macon hospital had worked for more than an hour to resuscitate her.

She was found in a smoke-filled bedroom of the home by her son, W. S. McGuyrt, linotype operator of the Telegraph, when he reached home after his night's work.

Mr. McGuyrt believes his mother had attempted to place a hot iron in his bed to have it warm when he reached home. He said in some manner the bedding was ignited, the smoldering blaze filling the room with thick smoke.

MURDER TRIAL OPENS IN LOUISVILLE COURT

Hubert Sheppard Faces Jury in Slaying Near Avera December 8.

LOUISVILLE, Ga., Jan. 21.—(P)—Trial of Hubert Sheppard, charged with murder in connection with the death of Ruel Hadden, near Avera, Ga., December 8, started Wednesday in superior court here.

Albert Lee Gaston, state's witness, made a statement to the jury in which he described what he alleged was the blow with an axe which killed Hadden. He told the jury Sheppard struck Hadden after an argument over a previous altercation.

Gaston admitted he had been selling whisky for some time and that he had met Hadden on the night he was slain for the purpose of delivering Hadden some whisky.

The negro said Sheppard halted him with a gun when he started to run and forced him to drag Hadden's body away, threatening him with death if he ever mentioned the slaying.

The case is expected to reach the jury Thursday.

Cordele Woman Observes Ninety-Fourth Birthday

CORDELE, Ga., Jan. 21.—(P)—Mrs. H. C. Hyde, believed to be the oldest white person in Crisp county, celebrated her 94th birthday Tuesday.

Mrs. Hyde, who is in unusually good health for a person of her age, greeted a newspaper reporter with an optimistic attitude toward present day social and economic conditions.

She came to Cordele 38 years ago, lived here until 1906, when she and the late Mr. Hyde moved to Columbus, Ga., and returned here in 1917.

SAVANNAH WORKERS SET SAFETY RECORD

MACON, Ga., Jan. 21.—(P)—A 1930 record of 1.3 injuries for each million man hours worked, made in the Savannah shops of the Central of Georgia railway, was the subject of discussion among safety advocates and industrial leaders of the state Wednesday.

The report of the Savannah shops was one of a number presented here Tuesday at a meeting of officers and employees of the railroad. The record was said to be the best ever made by a Central of Georgia shop.

In Atlanta, Hal M. Stanley, chairman of the state industrial commission, had high praise for the record, although accidents on steam-power railroads are not included in the scope of work of the commission. Mr. Stanley said the record of the Savannah shops was "a very nice one and at industries could profit by undertaking safety work among their employees. In every instance where safety work has been carried on, the number of accidents has decreased," he said.

DEPRESSION END
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 21.—
(AP)—Harvey S. Firestone told the Klanis Club here today that the business depression has reached its bottom.

"This is the turning point," he said.
"The way inclines up, not so fast as it came down, still definitely upwards."

He said his impression of business
over the country in general was it was steadily growing better.

Mr. Firestone remained here today while Thomas A. Edison and his party proceeded to Fort Myers.
